I made a number of efforts to find the bugs, without. success; last year we employed professional counter-surveillance people to scan. for bugs (see later) again without. result. In autumn 1990 I disposed of my TV and watched virtually no. television for the next three years. But harassment from TV stations has gone on for over six years and continues to this day.. This is something that. many people obviously know is happening; yet the TV staff have the morality of paedophiles,. that because they're getting away with it they feel. no wrong.

Other people who were involved in the. abuse in 1990 were DJs on BBC radio stations, notably. disc jockeys from Radio 1 and other stations (see the following section). Again, since. they don't have sense in the first place they can't be expect to have. the moral sense not to be part of criminal harassment.

That's exactly what we did. We went to a competent, professional. detective agency in London, paid them over. 400 quid to debug our house. They used scanner. devices which go to over 1 GHz and would pick up any nearby transmitter in that range,. they also checked the phones and found nothing... but if the tap was at. the exchange, then they wouldn't find anything, would. they?

CS: >Doesn't this suggest to you that there. are, in fact, no bugs to be found?

You can assume that they've done this sort of thing to other. people in more "serious". cases, where they would know the targets would suspect the presence of electronic surveillance. So they. will have developed techniques and devices which are not readily detectable either by. visual inspection or by electronic means. What those techniques. might be, I couldn't guess.

In this case, the. existence of bugging devices was clear from the beginning, and they "rubbed it in". with what was said by the boy on the coach. It was almost as if they. wanted counter-surveillance people to be called in, who they knew would fail to detect the. bugging devices, causing loss. of credibility to the other things I would have to say relating to the harassment.

I did all the things someone in my situation would do to try. to find the bugs. In addition to calling in professional help. using electronic counter-surveillance, I. made a close visual inspection of electrical equipment,. plus any points where audio or video surveillance devices might have. been concealed. Of course, I found nothing. Normal surveillance "mini-cameras" are quite noticeable and require. visible supporting circuitry. It seems to me the best place to put a small. video surveillance device would be additional to a piece of. electronic equipment such as a TV or video. It would be necessary. to physically break in to a property to fit such. a device.

The harassment didn't start by. itself, so someone must have been there at the outset to give it a firm push and set the "animals" after me. It. looks as if I. was set up in June 1990, and the timing indicates someone from university was. responsible.

In May or June 1990, Alan Freeman on Radio 1 read out a letter. from someone who had known me for a. few years, who wrote of the one who "wore out his welcome with random precision" (from the Pink. Floyd song). Freeman went on to say to the writer "that's. a hell of a letter you wrote there". The indication is strongly that people I had parted from. soon before nursed a grudge against me and were trying to cause trouble for. me.

The suggestion is that Freeman might have shown the letter to. other people, and things could have. snowballed from there. Right from the start the real source (security services presumed) didn't. announce themselves as the origin, but let the "talkers", the radio DJs, believe that. they were the originators. Think about it; if you announce,. "we're MI5 and we have a campaign against this bloke" then people might not go along with it; but. if you say, "everyone else is getting at this bloke. because he 'deserves' it" then people will join in with fewer. qualms.

>Why would "they". wish to assassinate your character?

It's the classic case. of hitting a cripple to prove you're stronger. Why would the security services expend hundreds of. thousands of pounds and more than six years of manpower to try to kill a British citizen?. Because they are motivated by people who knew me at university and feel. personal animosity; because they knew me to be emotionally weak, and it is in. the nature of bullies to prey on those known to be weak; and because. they can rely on the complicity of the establishment, which the security. services manipulate and derive funding from. This is. England's biggest humiliation today, and the British. security services are intent on preventing their humiliation becoming reality by continuing. their campaign of attempted murder to suppress the truth from becoming. public.

Many people know, both in the. establishment and media, and among the general public. Despite an absence. of its target from the UK for more than two years, the echoes of paranoia can still be heard loud and. clear from across the water. When it started in 1990,. the only people who knew were those in BBC television who were spying on my home, and. a few radio broadcasters. There. were a few cases of public harassment, but very little compared. to the situation that developed a couple of years later.

The. list today includes BBC TV staff (newsreaders such as Martyn Lewis, Michael Buerk, Nicholas Witchell), people from radio stations. such as Chris Tarrant of Capital and. Radio 1 DJs, people in the print media, but also many people in the general public. All united. in a conspiracy which breaks the laws which the UK does have regarding. harassment, and all completely uncaring for any semblance of. decency or elementary respect for individual. rights.

The British police (obviously) do know the nature of. the harassment and in all probability the. identity of those behind it. Some time ago I made a complaint to my local police. station in London, without positive result. The UK police are failing in their duty. to see the law enforced in not checking. the abuse.

The article. of which part is reproduced below was penned by Bernard Levin for the Features. section of the Times on 21 September 1991. To my mind, it described the situation at the time and in particular a recent meeting. with a friend, during which I. for the first time admitted to someone other than my GP that I had been. subjected to a conspiracy of harassment over the previous year and. a half.

>There is a madman. running loose about London, called David Campbell; I have

At the time this. article was written I had believed for some time that columnists in the Times and other. journalists had been making references to my situation. Nothing unusual about this you may think, plenty of. people have the same sort of ideas and. obviously the papers aren't writing about them, so why should. my beliefs not be as false as those of others?

What makes this article so extraordinary is that three or four. days immediately preceding its publication, I had a meeting with a. friend, during the course. of which we discussed the media persecution, and in particular that by. Times columnists. It seemed to me, reading the article by Levin in Saturday's paper,. that he was describing in some detail his "artist's impression" of. that meeting. Most telling are the final sentences, when he writes, "The madman bursts. into tears, and swears it is all true. And it is." Although I. did not "burst into tears" (he seems to be using a bit of poetic licence and. exaggerating) I did try hard to convince my friend that it was all true; and I am able to concur. with Mr Levin, because, of course,. it is.

At the beginning of the piece. Levin reveals a fear of being attacked by the "irrational" subject of his story, saying "I have no. reason to believe that he is violent, but he should certainly be approached. with caution". This goes. back to the xenophobic propaganda of "defence" against a "threat" which. was seen at the very beginning of the harassment. The impression of a "madman running loose" who needs. to be controlled through an agency which assigns to itself the mantle. of the "police" is also one which had been expressed. elsewhere.

In the final paragraph of this. extract, his reference to Everyman's Library as having "died a lingering and shameful death a. decade or so ago" shows clearly what sort of conclusion they. wish to their campaign. They want a permanent solution, and as they are prevented. from achieving that solution directly,. they waste significant resources on methods which have been repeatedly. shown to be ineffective for such a purpose.

More and more disgruntled Usenet posters are looking into how they, too, can take part in stifling Mark's thousands upon thousands of useless posts. Mark, KB9RQZ, made over 1,000 posts alone just this Sunday, December 30, 2007. He made over 800 the day before.
Please take a moment to look at the blog below and do your part to eliminate this blight from Usenet. We all have something to gain if Mark loses his ISP account and each of us can play a small part toward banishing him from Usenet.

The article of which part is reproduced below was penned by Bernard. Levin for the Features section of. the Times on 21 September 1991. To my mind, it described the. situation at the time and in particular a recent meeting with a friend, during which I for the first. time admitted to someone other than my GP that I had been subjected to. a conspiracy of harassment over the previous. year and a half.

>There is a madman running loose about London, called David. Campbell; I have >no reason to believe that he is. violent, but he should certainly be >approached with caution. You may know him by the curious glitter in. his >eyes and a persistent trembling of his hands;. if that does not suffice, you >will. find him attempting to thrust no fewer than 48 books into your arms, >all hardbacks, with a promise that, if. you should return to the same >meeting-place. next year, he will heave another 80 at you.
>If,. by now, the police have arrived and are keeping a close watch on him, >you may feel sufficiently emboldened to examine the books. The. jackets are >a model of uncluttered typography, elegantly and simply laid out;. there is >an unobtrusive colophon of a rising. sun, probably not picked at random.
>Gaining confidence - the lunatic. is smiling by now, and the policemen, who >know about such things, have significantly removed their. helmets - you >could. do worse than take the jacket off the first book in the pile. The >only word possible to. describe the binding is sumptuous; real cloth in a >glorious. shade of dark green, with the title and author in black and gold >on the. spine.
>Look at it more closely; your eyes do not deceive you - it. truly does have >real top-bands and tail-bands, in yellow, and,. for good measure, a silk >marker ribbon in a lighter green. The. paper is cream-wove and acid-free, >and the book is. sewn, not glued.
>Throughout the encounter, I should. have mentioned, our loony has been >chattering away, although what he is trying to. say is almost impossible to >understand; after a time, however, he becomes sufficiently coherent. to make >clear that he is trying to sell the books to you. Well, now, such. quality >in bookmaking today can only be for collectors' limited. editions at a >fearsome price - #30, #40,. #50?
>No, no, he says, the glitter more powerful than ever and the trembling. of >his hands. rapidly spreading throughout his entire body; no, no - the books >are priced variously at #7, #8 or. #9, with the top price #12.
>At this,. the policemen understandably put their helmets back on; one of >them draws his truncheon and the other. can be heard summoning >reinforcements. on his walkie-talkie. The madman bursts into tears, and >swears it is. all true.

>And it. is.
>David. Campbell has acquired the entire rights to the whole of the >Everyman's Library, which died a lingering. and shameful death a decade or >so. ago, and he proposes to start it all over again - 48 volumes this >September and 80 more. next year, in editions I have described, at the >prices specified. He proposes to. launch his amazing venture simultaneously >in Britain and the United. States, with the massive firepower of Random >Century at his. back in this country, and the dashing cavalry of Knopf >across the water, and no one who loves literature and courage will. forbear >to. cheer.

At the time this article was written I had. believed for some time that columnists in the Times and. other journalists had been making references to my situation. Nothing unusual about this you may think,. plenty of people have the same sort of. ideas and obviously the papers aren't writing about them, so why should my beliefs not. be as false as those of others?

What makes this article so extraordinary is that. three or four days immediately preceding its publication,. I had a meeting with a friend, during the course of which we discussed the media persecution, and. in particular that by. Times columnists. It seemed to me, reading the article by Levin in. Saturday's paper, that he was describing in some detail his "artist's impression" of that meeting. Most telling are the. final sentences, when he writes, "The. madman bursts into tears, and swears it is all. true. And it is." Although I did not "burst into tears" (he seems to be using a bit of poetic licence. and exaggerating) I did try hard to convince my friend that it was all. true; and I am able to concur with Mr Levin, because,. of course, it is.

At the beginning of the piece Levin reveals a fear of being. attacked by the "irrational" subject of his story, saying "I have no reason to. believe that he is violent, but he should. certainly be approached with caution". This goes back to the xenophobic propaganda of. "defence" against a "threat" which was seen at the very beginning of the. harassment. line. Two men and their girlfriends recognised me; the women sprang. to my defence, saying. "He looks perfectly normal, he doesn't look ill". Their boyfriends of course knew better, and followed the party. line; one of them made reference to an "operation", apparently to work at. the tube station but. implicitly to a visit that I had made to hospital a couple of weeks previously.

In August. 1990 going home from college, soon after getting on a tube train at Gloucester Road I was. followed by a group of four youths, who started a chant of abuse. That they were. targeting me was confirmed by other people in the carriage, one of whom asked the other "who. are they going on at, is it the bloke who. just got on?" to which the second replied "yes, I think so". I was. tempted to reply, but as in every other instance the abusers are enabled. in their cowardice by physically outnumbering the abused; any confrontation would result in my being beaten up, followed by a. complaint to the police that "he attacked. us", and of course he's ill, so he must have been. imagining that we were getting at him. Shitty, aren't they?

But the. shittiness of the four youths on the tube train is as nothing compared to the episode on the National Express coach to Dover. in the summer of 1992. While going on holiday. to the Continent I was verbally set upon. by a couple travelling sitting a few rows behind. The boy did the talking,. his female companion contributing only a continuous empty giggling noise. He spoke loudly to ensure other. people on the coach heard, always about "they" and "this. bloke" but never naming either the abusers or the person he was talking about.. He said "they" had "found somebody from his school, and he was always really. stressed at school". They must have dug deep to find enemies there;. perhaps someone who dropped out of school, someone who didn't do too well later, who was jealous and keen to get. their own back? The boy also said "he was in a bed and breakfast for. only one night and they got him". By a not unexpected coincidence I had. been in a B&B in Oxford a week previously, which. had been booked from work; other things lead me to the conclusion that the company's offices were bugged. for most of the 2 1/2 years that I was. there, so "they" would have known a room in the B&B had been booked. (But I'll bet "they". didn't tell the company's managers their offices were bugged,. did they?).

After a few minutes of this I went. back to where they were sitting and asked. where they were travelling. The boy named a village in France, and the girl's giggling suddenly ceased; presumably it permeated to her. brain cell what the. purpose of the boy's abuse was.

This and. other set-up situations are obviously calculated to provoke a direct confrontation which would bring in the. police, with the abusers claiming that they were the. ones attacked. Again in 1992, outside the house where I was living in Oxford I. was physically attacked by someone - not punched, just grabbed by the coat, with some verbals thrown in for. good measure. That was. something the people at work shouldn't have known about... but soon after a couple of people were. talking right in front of me about, "I. heard he was attacked". The UK police have a responsibility for preventing assault occurring, but they do not seem to take any. interest in meeting that. responsibility. I suppose their attitude is that harassment does not come within. their remit unless it involves physical assault, and they will only become involved once that happens. That is of. course quite the wrong attitude for them to take, but as I now. understand, the police investigate only the crime they wish to investigate; if. they do not take your complaints. seriously then there is nothing you can do to make them take. action.

-=. my response to the harassment -=

My first reaction in 1990/91 was to assume that if. I broke contact then they would not be able to follow and would. lose interest. So I did the things that have been. suggested by other people; I sold my television, stopped. listening to the radio and tried to withdraw away from the sources of abuse. as much as possible. I reasoned that they must have more important things to deal with and that normal people would simply leave me. alone if it were made difficult for them to. continue their harassment.

I reckoned without the sheer. vindictiveness of the abusers. They did not let up but instead "got to" people around. me, mainly people at work, to do their dirty work for them. I went. to see my GP, who refused to believe what he was being told, and refused to. direct me on to anyone who could be of practical assistance. It was not. until three years had passed that the GP admitted the matter was outside his competence. and suggested going to the police.

In the. summer of 1994 we called in counter-surveillance experts from a private detective agency to sweep our. house and telephone for bugging devices. They. conducted a thorough search and found nothing; but as noted above, since the existence of surveillance. was being forced in my face by the harassers, you would expect them to. have taken the possibility of a counter-surveillance sweep. into account when planning the type of devices to. be employed.

In Easter 1995 I made a complaint to my local Police station. in London, but the police. have not expressed any intention to do anything about the continuing harassment. ("we're not saying it's happening and we're not saying it isn't happening" were. the words used). I think the officer I spoke to. at Easter wasn't aware of it happening, although other members of the police force obviously. do know.

From April 1995 until the present time. the matter has been discussed in a lot. of detail on the Usenet (Internet) "uk.misc" newsgroup. That discussion has given birth to the article which you are. now reading. My hopes in posting. to Usenet were that wider publicizing would discourage the security services from continuing. their harassment, and "draw people out" into concurring with the truth of. what was being said. Neither of those have followed, but the discussion has served a purpose in allowing. this structured report to. be created.

MI5; they traditionally "protect" the British state from. politicians of the wrong hue by. character assassination, and in this case are using their tried and tested methods to murder. with words an enemy they have invented for. themselves.

And there are precedents.. Diana and Hewitt were alleged to have been filmed "at it" by an Army intelligence team which had operated. in Northern Ireland, these. allegations were made by someone called Jones who had been on the. team. His statements were denied by the defence establishment who tried to character-assassinate by describing him as. the "Jones twins". Funny. how if you tell the truth, then you must be ill, isn't it? Thought only communists. behaved like that?

Hewitt later said that he'd been spoken to. by someone in the army who revealed the existence of. videotapes of him and Diana, and that the tapes would. be published if any attempt was made by them to resume their association.

-= why the security. services? -=

You may ask,. why do I think the "they" referred to are the security services? Is there. any evidence that there is a single source, as opposed to a loosely based "whispering campaign" amongst many people?. Even if there is. a single source, is there any evidence that "they" are professional "buggers" as opposed to amateurs, or perhaps. people working for a privately funded. organization?

a) As to the question of a single source versus something more. fragmented; it is quite obvious that there is a single. source from the way the campaign has been. carried out. Since things have been repeated verbatim which were said in my home, there must be one group. which does the watching and listening. Since on several occasions (mainly during travel) people. have been planted in close proximity and rehearsed. in what they were to say, it follows that. someone must have done the planning for that, and again a single. source is indicated.

b) So why couldn't it be amateurs? Why. couldn't it be a private organisation, for example a private detective agency paid to. manage the campaign and undertake the technical aspects? Some detective agencies. are unscrupulous as has been proved on the occasions in the past. when they've been exposed or caught;. they too can have access to the bugging technology deployed; and there are reported. cases of MI5 paying private eyes to do their dirty work (against peace campaigners and similar. enemies of the state) on the understanding that if they were caught then they. could deny all knowledge. Why. couldn't that be the case?

The main factor pointing to. direct security service involvement (as opposed to amateurs or MI5 proxies) is the breadth of their. access to the media in particular, and. the fact that the television companies are so involved in the campaign. The BBC would not. directly invade someone's home themselves, since it would not be. within their remit to allocate personnel or financial resources. to do so. An organisation of their stature would not take part in a campaign set up by private sources.. The only people they would take material from would be the security. services, presumably on the assumption that if the cat ever flew out of the. bag yowling it would be MI5 who would take the. consequences.

State sponsorship for these acts of psychological terrorism is. also indicated by duration;. support for over six years for a team of three or four people would be beyond the means and will. of most private sources. The viciousness of the slanders and. personal denigration also points to

MI5;. they traditionally "protect" the British state from politicians of the wrong hue by character assassination, and in this case are using. their tried and tested methods to. murder with words an enemy they have invented for. themselves.

And there are precedents. Diana and Hewitt were alleged to have. been filmed "at it" by an Army intelligence team. which had operated in Northern Ireland, these allegations were made by someone called. Jones who had been on the team. His statements. were denied by the defence establishment who tried to character-assassinate by describing him. as the "Jones twins". Funny how. if you tell the truth, then you must be ill, isn't it? Thought only. communists behaved like that?

Hewitt later said that. he'd been spoken to by someone in the army who revealed the existence of videotapes of him. and Diana, and that the tapes would be published if any attempt was made by them to resume. their association.

-= harassment. at work -=

Once I stopped watching television and listening to. the radio at the end of 1990, "they" had to find. other ways of committing abuses. So they took what must be for them a tried and tested route; they get. at you by subversion of those around. you. Since they wouldn't be able to do that with my family or friends, that. meant getting at people in the workplace to be their mouthpieces and do their dirty work. for them.

They supplied my employers in Oxford. with details from what was going on in my private life, and what I and other people had said at my home. and accommodation. in Oxford. So people at work repeated verbatim words which had been said in my. home, and repeated what I'd been doing recently. Often the most trivial things, the ones from your domestic. life, are the ones which. hurt most. One manager in particular at Oxford continuously abused me for ten months with verbal. sexual abuse, swearing, and threats to terminate my employment. After ten months I was forced to seek psychiatric help. and start taking medication, and was away from work for. two months. I spoke later with a solicitor about what had happened at that. company; he advised it was only possible. to take action if you had left the company as a result of harassment, and such an. action would have to be started very soon after leaving.

Over. a year later the same manager picked on another new worker, with even more serious results; that employee tried to commit suicide with. an overdose as a result of the ill-treatment, and was forced to leave. his job. But he didn't take. action against the company, either. Abuse at work is comparable to that. elsewhere in that tangible evidence is difficult to produce, and the abusers will always. have their denials ready when challenged. And even if a court accepts what you say happened,. it still remains to prove that abuse causes. the type of breakdown I had at the end of 1992. In a recent case before a British. court, a former member of the Army brought a case against others who. had maltreated him ten years previously. Although the court accepted that. abuse had occurred, it did not agree that. depressive illness necessarily followed, and denied justice to the. plaintiff.

Space Weather News for Jan. 3, 2008
http://spaceweather.com

METEOR SHOWER: Earth is about to pass through a stream of dusty debris from near-Earth asteroid 2003 EH1, producing the annual Quadrantid meteor shower. Forecasters expect a brief but intense peak of 50+ meteors per hour over Earth's northern hemisphere sometime between 0200 UTC and 0700 UTC on Friday morning, Jan. 4th. (Subtract 5 hours to convert UTC to EST.) The timing favors observers in the eastern USA, Europe and western parts of Asia. Winter storms frequently hide this shower from observers on the ground. To avoid such problems, a team of astronomers led by Peter Jenniskens of the SETI Institute plan to fly a plane above the clouds where they can train their cameras on the Quadrantids. Their data may reveal whether asteroid 2003 EH1 is the fragment of a broken-apart comet. Visit http://spaceweather.com for sky maps and more information.

JUST FOR FUN: This is a good time of year to see Orion the Hunter: the constellation rises in the east at sunset. Watching Orion ascend, you may experience the little-known "constellation illusion." The idea is the same as the Moon illusion; constellations viewed near the horizon look abnormally large. Go outside tonight and look. Can you believe your eyes?

Anyone got the 222 Vol of Sams? I just missed one on E-Bay. Need the Washington Info. For now - could use the damned mic wiring. Have an RK 56 which was wired ass backwards of the wires that were connected - and with some wires not even connected. Found the schematic online and rewired the top to match it. Trying to get it wired to the Washington. I've played with it a bit - but have to stop for now. Being I wanted to ask for a copy of 222 or the needed portion thereof, thought i'd ask for the mic wiring at the least. Have to meet some friends to go watch some football and had to quit for the night!

Thanks!

microphone wiring code
Standard 1-Audio, 2-Shield, 3-Receive, 4- Switching, 5-Transmit Astatic 1-White, 2-Shield, 3-Black, 4-Blue, 5-Red Sadelta 1-White, 2-NC, 3-Green, 4-Shield, 5-Brown
Turner 1-White, 2-Shield, 3-Black, 4-Red, 5-Blue

I don't know if the Turner is the same. But it's worth a shot.

Vinnie, cut out early from watching the game - will give it a shot. That I got jolted from a Robyn T-240D tube radio. I connected the D104 using the wiring diagram, but the the guy I purchased from didn't tell me that the radio internal connector was re-wired for a 4 pin Cobra. So I grabbed the mic and the channel selector, and got 200 VDC through me. It was not pleasant !

AH YES - those were the days. I had a Lafayette Comstat 25A hit me once. I guess that is part of what helped give me my "electrofying" personality! :) Hell, I had a Tube set - can't recall the model now - out on my cement porch one day. I was in my bare feet, "it" hadn't been plugged in for a while. The caps didn't seem to mind that. I bent down to pick it up and touched the right spot or wrong depending on your view - I still got zapped.

I have a Robyn parts radio right now - ready to clear out or be stripped. I "think" it is the 240D - but don't quote me - my mind isn't fixated on "model" numbers right now.

Truth be told, I'd rather work on the Tube sets though - more enjoyable. I can "see" the parts without glasses - let alone bi-focals or magnifying lenses. I like the audio and warm glow. Have a Comstat 25A of my mothers - am wanting to get to sometime soon - to redo. I don't talk on the CB anymore - but I'd fire it up just to hear the audio.
Around here - for a long while - it was nothing but World War III on most any channel. Now you hardly hear anyone - aside from truckers and the local factory security.

Cutting one trace on radio is easily reversable. Many times it's not even necessary as there are wires that connect from the mic jack to the PC board. As for sales... as the word gets out... sales are steadily increasing. But I'm not sure why you're concerned about that since you receive nothing from each sale... LOL

To my surprise, international sales have been very strong. Actually, if the current trend continues, there will be be more VoiceMax modules operating in foreign countries than here in the US. Many of these sales are being generated from the web site... not ebay.

Frequently Asked Questions

► Does VoiceMax use signal clipping to achieve compression?
No, signal clipping causes distortion and produces audio that sounds "fuzzy". VoiceMax uses a sophisticated automatic gain control circuit to maintain audio at a constant level with distortion well below 1%.

► Can I install the VoiceMax module myself?
Yes, but for optimum results the installer should have access to an oscilloscope. The oscilloscope will be used in adjusting the output level of the VoiceMax module so that the transmitter will not over modulate.

► Can I use a power or condenser microphone with VoiceMax?
No. Due to VoiceMax's high gain we recommend that only non-amplified dynamic type microphones be used. Power and condenser microphones contain amplifiers that are generally incompatible with VoiceMax. There are many aftermarket microphones that work well with VoiceMax... such as Astatic 611L, Astatic 636L, Astatic 651, and others.

► What is a noise gate?
A noise gate is a feature that allows low-level sounds to be subdued. This is very useful in a mobile environment, where road noise can be a problem. VoiceMax's noise gate threshold level is adjusted once during installation, based on user preference.

► Does VoiceMax require a battery?
No, the power required for the VoiceMax module is extremely low, and is derived from inside the transceiver.

► How big is the VoiceMax module?... And will it fit inside my radio?
The size of the VoiceMax module is 1.6" x 1.6" x 0.32" utilizing surface mount electronic technology. This small size should fit inside most transceivers.

► How will I know the VoiceMax module is working?
VoiceMax has a modulation indicator LED that flashes in sync to audio applied to the transceiver's microphone. This LED is viewed during the adjustment procedure, to make certain VoiceMax's levels are set properly for your transceiver.

► Should the VoiceMax module be operating all the time?
Yes! The VoiceMax module was designed to be active whenever your transceiver is operating. This allows you to take advantage of VoiceMax's performance boost every time you transmit.

LOL. That is what I did when you forcasted 30 sales per month on ebay, and gave me a lecture on business 101. When I asked about you slow first months sales, you said they were slow. More like non-existant. Then you drastically reduced prices.

Let's put it this way. You created a product for a non-existing market, and made it where you basically needed electronics training to install it. Not to mention cutting traces an so forth. That is what I call brilliant business stratgey ! All after the Skywave debacle.

Hell, he wasn't even worth his mother and father's time! When they seen that mass of toxicity come out of her puss - they wanted to toss it - but Haz Mat regs prevented it.

I am hoping to get down to the bench later on. Haven't gotten there yet. Last night - was wanting to when I came back early from watching the game - but after a few brews - figured I better not. Got busy today with a bunch of stuff. Just now starting to slow down. I don't know where this dude is getting all his stuff - but WOW... what a mess.
Miswired, chopped up, you name it. I sure hope he isn't paying any good money for the stuff!

I have that mic, the Washington and one other radio to do for them. The rest are done and gone.

Thanks for the assist.

I am currently working on a friend's TRC-457, that is another restore project. This radio was hacked. The channel mods, and clarifier all hacks. The deadkey was real low. Channel selector is out. Lamps burnt out. I got the deadkey fixed by replacing the final. That worked fine. As I was trying to adjust modulation on my scope, I must have shorted the mic inputs, and lost the output. on AM, I have no deadkey. On SSB, the relay chatters when I key up. I tested the fina and it's still good. This one might be one of those one step up, 2 steps back radios. It is the the only radio I have seen with all these different problems.

Well - the "wiring" was ok - the switch on the other hand - was not. It was flaky. I wired in a "regular" switch - not the "PTT" type - before finding the "replacement" to see what the deal was. The mic worked fine. So - back to replacing the switch (after dinner!).

As to your TRC 457, I have one of those waiting. That was the "other" radio I have waiting - after the Washington.
I have the "Radio Shack" "Factory" manual for it - and I can't swear to it - but maybe a Sams too. If you need any help from that manual - let me know - be more than happy to help out. I already have the manual sitting on my bench for the 457's turn. This one is "said" to be receiving ok AM/SSB, Transmits fine on AM - but none on SSB. So - we shall see. I've not tested it yet to see.

As for right now - "Dinner". Radios can wait.

A open letter to CBres

Lets keep are linear amplifiers turned off for the next sun spot season.

Just imagine a day when you can turn on your radio (Durning sun spot season) and not hear 9db plus of noise. Hearing the sound of millions of CBers keying up with High Power, poorly tuned and over modulated radios is not what I call a fun way to enjoy a hobby. I would like to suggest a better way of operating your CB equipment. Instead of using the brute force method of CB Operation (High Power, over tuned and over modulated radios). I suggest using the radios as they were intended, outputting the Maximum legal power and staying out of the radios. Using linear amplifiers ruined the CB experience for everybody else. linear amplifiers splatters RF to adjacent frequencies, Interferes with other services (aviation and emergency services) and can even be hazardous to your health. The modification of CBs (Freq and Peek) is also a concern. I can't tell you how many times I have opened a radio I bought from ebay or the ham swap to see all of the tunable components hacked or tuned with a 1/4 inch flat screwdriver. I don't understand how someone would think you can tune a radio better then at the factory, after all the factory only has the best possible electronic test equipment to calibrate the radios. Sure, I understand that these radios are not tuned to output the maximum possible RF output that the circuit can supply, But instead set to the FCC maximums.

I just think people should take pride in there RF Signal. CB would be a much better place with out the noise makers, profanity, linear amplifiers and all the other stuff that makes CB a joke. Are you proud to be a CBer? CB radio was a starting place for my career(and Life) in technology. I eventually earned my ham ticket than went to college to get my degree in electrical engineering. I hope someday CB will be a place were young people will spark there interest in technology .

Keep your RF level down so we can all enjoy the band.

Thanks

KGK5417 (My CB call sign circa 1971)

And remember, anybody can talk across the country with 500 watts, but its a real accomplishment to talk across the country with 4 watts

Telling cbers to operate in reasonable manner, not use profanity, not use over splattering linear amps is like telling Rosemary to have

I was worried the RK56 might not have the same wiring as old Turners. Who makes these now? I assume that someone purchased the rights to make these. Some did purchase the rights to make the expander 500 in Europe. I am surprised no one has purchased the right to make the +2 or +3 here in the states. They both have demand.

Telex/Turner still produces "2 way" radio devices for Public Service - at least according to their Web Site. They also have a spot there for the "CB mics" - although - little information. Between your info and some others I dug up online - I was ok. Looking in one of my trade magazines, I didn't see any Telex/Turner ads. Most places around here - use mostly Motorola stuff.

As to "demand" - I guess it depends on who shares that opinion. I'm not saying you're wrong - but, for example - here - the CB craze has pretty much died. The "few" CBs heard now - are mainly from truckers on the Interstate not far from here, local hauling companies, "skip", trucks coming into the local factory and the guards to direct them.

The "few" I know of - on CB - are using the upper channels for the most part - "above" 40.

Yeah, that RK 56 was all screwed up. I took it completely apart and started over. Once I got that done - then I started to play with it and though I did originally have the mic wired properly to the set - it wasn't working. Without the wiring scheme for the radio - I was starting to second guess myself and too - the switch being flaky didn't help. Your info "confirmed" the wiring to the set.

I look on ebay for demand. People are still paying money for old beat up mics.
Some are even paying upwards of $100 for D104s. There isn't a major demand as far as mass production. But I am sure some outfit could produce them in smaller quanities as some other gear is made.

Yeah, you'd think someone could do it. I bought a box full of CB stuff about a year or so ago off a lady I had known for a while - who was getting out it. She had a couple D104s in there. I can't recall which ones now exactly - I think one was amplified - one not, I can't recall now. I think I got like $40 a piece for them. I do notice - when I bother to look - that the D104s do seem to be asked for. Personally, I've never been a fan of them - as a CBer from years gone by - or a ham. They work ok - but to me - just too damned awkward. Oh well - there's nothing wrong with - recycling.

I have a Turner +3B that seems to be shitting the bed. I replaced all the caps.
The problem is the element or the contacts. Neither is available.

That's all the feedback? Base on your Businiess 101 forecast in Sept of 30 sales per month, you should have 150 sales. Where are the remaining 140 feedbacks?

Actually, you don't bore me. I especially got a kick from that guy that came here for the first time in 12 years, and mocked you because someone was telling to fuck ff back then, too.

So to borrow one of you favorite lines:

Hey... is it so surprising that there were knuckleheads visiting this group 12 years ago? It's no different than today... they come in once and a while... make an insult because they don't know the first thing about radios... and then they leave. Only to repeat the same action years later... when they're no smarter.

usurper, there is the report of the coming of Jesus Christ.

So I hold out my arms to my Redeemer, who, having been foretold for four thousand years, has come to suffer and to die for me on earth, at the time and under all the circumstances foretold. By His grace, I await death in peace, in the hope of being eternally united to Him. Yet I live with joy, whether in the prosperity which it pleases Him to bestow upon me, or in the adversity which He sends for my good, and which He has taught me to bear by His example.

738. The prophecies having given different signs which should all happen at the advent of the Messiah, it was necessary that all these signs should occur at the same time. So it was necessary that the fourth monarchy should have come, when the seventy weeks of Daniel were ended; and that the sceptre should have then departed from Judah. And all this happened without any difficulty. Then it was necessary that the Messiah should come; and Jesus Christ then came, who was called the Messiah. And all this again was without difficulty. This indeed shows the truth of the prophecies.

739. The prophets foretold, and were not foretold. The saints again were foretold, but did not foretell. Jesus Christ both foretold and was foretold.

740. Jesus Christ, whom the two Testaments regard, the Old as its hope, the New as its model, and both as their centre.

741. The two oldest books in the world are those of Moses and Job, the one a Jew and the other a Gentile. Both of them look upon Jesus Christ as their common centre and object: Moses in relating the promises of God to Abraham, Jacob, etc., and his prophecies; and Job, Quis mihi det ut, etc. Scio enim quod redemptor meus vivit, etc.146

742. The Gospel only speaks of the virginity of the Virgin up to the time of the birth of Jesus Christ. All with reference to Jesus Christ.

743. Proofs Of Jesus Christ.

Why was the book of Ruth preserved?

Why the story of Tamar?

744. "Pray that ye enter not into tempt

And though there still remains an habitual strong persuasion; yet not so as to exclude temptations to unbelief, and all possibility of doubting. But then, at particular times, by God's help, the same sense of things revives again, like fire that lay hid in ashes. I suppose the grounds of such a conviction of the truth of divine things to be just and rational; but yet, in some, God makes use of their own reason much more sensibly than in others. Oftentimes persons have (so far as could be judged) received the first saving conviction from reasoning which they have heard from the pulpit; and often in the course of reasoning they are led into in their own meditations.

The arguments are the same that they have heard hundreds of times; but the force of the arguments, and their conviction by them, is altogether new; they come with a new and before unexperienced power. Before, they heard it was so, and they allowed it to be so; but now they see it to be so indeed. Things now look exceeding plain to them, and they wonder they did not see them before.

They are so greatly taken with their new discovery,

When force attacks humbug, when a private soldier takes the square cap off a first president, and throws it out of the window.

311. The government founded on opinion and imagination reigns for some time, and this government is pleasant and voluntary; that founded on might lasts for ever. Thus opinion is the queen of the world, but might is its tyrant.

312. Justice is what is established; and thus all our established laws will necessarily be regarded as just without examination, since they are established.

313. Sound opinions of the people.--Civil wars are the greatest of evils. They are inevitable, if we wish to reward desert; for all will say they are deserving. The evil we have to fear from a fool who succeeds by right of birth, is neither so great nor so sure.

314. God has created all for Himself. He has bestowed upon Himself the power of pain and pleasure.

You can apply it to God, or to yourself. If to God, the Gospel is the rule. If to yourself, you will take the place of God. As God is surrounded by persons full of charity, who ask of Him the blessings of charity that are in His power, so... recognise, then, and learn that you are only a king of lust, and take the ways of lust.

315. The reason of effects.--It is wonderful that men would not have me honour a man clothed in brocade and followed by seven or eight lackeys! Why! He will have me thrashed, if I do not salute him. This custom is a farce. It is the same with a horse in fine trappings in comparison with another! Montaigne is a fool not to see what difference there is, to wonder at our finding any, and to ask the reason. "Indeed," says he, "how comes it," etc....

of such envious thoughts; which if allowed tend exceedingly to quench the Spirit of God, if not to provoke Him finally to forsake them. And when such a spirit has much prevailed, and persons have not so earnestly strove against it as they ought to have done, it has seemed to be exceedingly to the hindrance of the good of their souls. But in some other instances, where persons have been much terrified at the sight of such wickedness in their hearts, God has brought good to them out of evil; and made it a means of convincing them of their own desperate sinfulness, and bringing them off from all self-confidence.

The drift of the Spirit of God in His legal strivings with persons, has seemed most evidently to be, to bring to a conviction of their absolute dependence on His sovereign power and grace, and an universal necessity of a mediator. This has been effected by leading them more and more to a sense of their exceeding wickedness and guiltiness in His sight; their pollution, and the insufficiency of their own righteousness; that they can in no wise help themselves, and that God would be wholly just and righteous in rejecting them and all that they do, and in casting them off for ever. There is however a vast variety as to the manner and distinctness of such convictions.

As they are gradually more and more convinced of the corruption and wickedness of their hearts, they seem to themselves to grow worse and worse, harder and blinder, and more desperately wicked, instead of growing better. They are ready to be discouraged by it, and oftentimes never think themselves so far off from good as when they are nearest.
Under the sense which the Spirit of God gives them of their sinfulness, they often think that they differ from all others; their hearts are ready to sink with the thought that they are the worst of all, and that none ever obtained mercy who were so wicked as they.

When awakenings first begin, their consciences are commonly most exercised about

I have seen people buy stuff on auction sites that I can buy locally for less. So yes there are uniformed consumers. All to often, there are sharks that pray on those uninformed consumers. Not saying you are

The componets are sitting on bubblewrap. That was the point. Assuming that that is not ESB bubblewrap and can actually hold a charge, where do you think the path is going to?

Huh? Like I said... the components are under the grounded metal shield. The metal shield is sitting on the bubble wrap. You need to look at the photo more closely... or get a new prescription for your glasses! You really are something... lol

You didn't answer the question. Is that ESD bubblewrap?

2 problems I see:

1. If it's ESD bubblewrap, then it's conductive. Which means it can't be in there permanently.

2. If it's not ESD bubblewrap, then you introduce the possibility of ESD, especially in cold and very dry climates. Being that that is a mobile rig, the problem of static is worse because you always can discharge yourself as you get in or out of the car. If you ever go to a gas station, you see signs about that.

As far as the picture, all it shows is that an antenna is connects. Nothing else.

But that is all I was getting at. You are one paranoid fool.

I can't see a metal sheild, plus the photos you have shown have been of components. If there is a metal shield, then good for you. But you photo taking abilities are shit. Making sound like it's there in braod daylight, just shows what a complete ass you are.

BTW, I noticed you claimed that the people who purchased it are these technically inclined people. Obviously, they must have gone to the saem business into a CB worth about $40. Brilliant.

Sheilding does nothing for ESD protection. ESD damage can be induced from power leads as well as signal inputs and outputs. In fact more damage is done with ESD discharge with ground rising above the positive supply potential during an ESD event. A 4KV discharge is easily encountered with handling of any componnent or assembly without even the person knowing it happens. The human body can impart as much as a 16KV discharge during an ESD event.

LOL..... how fucking "lame" is that? Man - just "seeing" that in print - is like a fingernail across a chalkboard.
Oddly, "I" had nothing against Brian, didn't even know the guy. But when he come here and started cracking on me - and not even knowing me - well - he showed his hand immediately. So - all I can say is - HE SUCKS and can kiss my ass. What a maggot. OR is there suppposed to be an "f" in front instead of an "m"?

Sorry Brian - you brought this and all else - onto your self. You have only yourself to blame.

which was the type of it.

Among the Jews the truth was only typified; in heaven it is revealed.

In the Church it is hidden and recognised by its resemblance to the type.

The type has been made according to the truth, and the truth has been recognised according to the type.

Saint Paul says himself that people will forbid to marry, and he himself speaks of it to the Corinthians in a way which is a snare. For if a prophet had said the one, and Saint Paul had then said the other, he would have been accused.

674. Typical.--"Do all things according to the pattern which has been shown thee on the mount." On which Saint Paul says that the Jews have shadowed forth heavenly things.

675.... And yet this Covenant, made to blind some and enlighten others, indicated in those very persons, whom it blinded, the truth which should be recognised by others. For the visible blessings which they received from God were so great and so divine that He indeed appeared able to give them those that are invisible and a Messiah.

For nature is an image of Grace, and visible miracles are images of the invisible. Ut sciatis... tibi dico: Surge.127

Isaiah says that Redemption will be as the passage of the Red Sea.

God has, then, shown by the deliverance from Egypt, and from the sea, by the defeat of kings, by the manna, by the whole genealogy of Abraham, that He was able to save, to send down bread from heaven, etc.; so that the people hostile to Him are the type and the representation of the very Messiah whom they know not, etc.

He has, then, taught us at last that all these things were only types and what is "true freedom," a "true Israelite," "true circumcision," "true bread from heaven," etc.

In these promises each one finds what he has most at heart, temporal benefits or spiritual, God or the creatures; but with this difference, that those who therein seek the creatures find them, but with many contradictions, with a prohibition of this subject without being horrified at conduct so extravagant?

This resting in ignorance is a monstrous thing, and they who pass their life in it must be made to feel its extravagance and stupidity, by having it shown to them, so that they may be confounded by the sight of their folly. For this is how men reason, when they choose to live in such ignorance of what they are and without seeking enlightenment. "I know not," they say...

196. Men lack heart; they would not make a friend of it.

197. To be insensible to the extent of despising interesting things, and to become insensible to the point which interests us most.

198. The sensibility of man to trifles, and his insensibility to great things, indicates a strange inversion.

199. Let us imagine a number of men in chains and all condemned to death, where some are killed each day in the sight of the others, and those who remain see their own fate in that of their fellows and wait their turn, looking at each other sorrowfully and without hope. It is an image of the condition of men.

200. A man in a dungeon, ignorant whether his sentence be pronounced and having only one hour to learn it, but this hour enough, if he knew that it is pronounced, to obtain its repeal, would act unnaturally in spending that hour, not in ascertaining his sentence, but in playing piquet. So it is against nature that man, etc. It is making heavy the hand of God.

Thus not only the zeal of those who seek Him proves God, but also the blindness of those who seek Him not.

201. All the objections of this one and that one only go against themselves, and not against religion. All that infidels say ...

202. From those who are in despair at being without faith, we see that God does not enlighten them; but as to the rest, we see there is a God who makes them blind.

Absolutely nothing wrong with selling preliminary information PDF files. The charge was merely to cover the Ebay advertising expenses. The people who purchased the information knew exactly what they were receiving. Many who purchased the information followed up by purchasing the VoiceMax module when they became available. I offer a full money-back guarantee on every purchase and I have NOT had one returned!

do not know ourselves to be full of pride, ambition, lust, weakness, misery, and injustice, we are indeed blind. And if, knowing this, we do not desire deliverance, what can we say of a man...?

What then, can we have but esteem for a religion which knows so well the defects of man, and desire for the truth of a religion which promises remedies so desirable?

451. All men naturally hate one another. They employ lust as far as possible in the service of the public weal. But this is only a pretnece and a false image of love; for at bottom it is only hate.

452. To pity the unfortunate is not contrary to lust. On the contrary, we can quite well give such evidence of friendship, and acquire the reputation of kindly feeling, without giving anything.

453. From lust men have found and extracted excellent rules of policy, morality, and justice; but in reality this vile root of man, this figmentum

454. Injustice.--They have not found any other means of satisfying lust without doing injury to others.

455. Self is hateful. You, Milton, conceal it; you do not for that reason destroy it; you are, then, always hateful.

No; for in acting as we do to oblige everybody, we give no more occasion for hatred of us. That is true, if we only hated in Self the vexation which comes to us from it. But if I hate it because it is unjust and because it makes itself the centre of everything, I shall always hate it.

In a word, the Self has two qualities: it is unjust in itself since it makes itself the centre of everything; it is inconvenient to others since it would enslave them; for each Self is the enemy, and would like to be the tyrant of all others. You take away its inconvenience, but not its injustice, and so you do not render it lovable to those who hate injustice; you render it

It's totally bogus. Take a close look at the spelling and attention to proper structure. It seems that the only thing that looks like it had attention paid to it is the term VoiceMax. If that term kept the same structure it would of been voicemax or voicemaks or voicemacs.

places, the main subject of conversation for several months after. And there were some turns, wherein God's work seemed to revive, and we were ready to hope that all was going to be renewed again; yet, in the main, there was a gradual decline of that general, engaged, lively spirit in religion, which had been. Several things have happened since, which have diverted people's minds, and turned their conversation more to other affairs; particularly his Excellency the Governor's coming up, and the Committee of general court, on the treaty with the Indians. -Afterwards,

But as to those who have been thought converted at this time, they

Having heard various and contradictory accounts of it, they were careful when here to satisfy themselves; and to that end particularly conversed

--They conclude that what has been done once can be done always, and that, since the desire of glory imparts some power to those whom it possesses, others can do likewise. There are feverish movements which health cannot imitate.

Epictetus concludes that, since there are consistent Christians, every man can easily be so.

351. Those great spiritual efforts, which the soul sometimes assays, are things on which it does not lay hold. It only leaps to them, not as upon a throne, for ever, but merely for an instant.

352. The strength of a man's virtue must not be measured by his efforts, but by his ordinary life.

353. I do not admire the excess of a virtue as of valour, except I see at the same time the excess of the opposite virtue, as in Epaminondas, who had the greatest valour and the greatest kindness. For otherwise it is not to rise, it is to fall. We do not display greatness by going to one extreme, but in touching both at once, and filling all the intervening space. But perhaps this is only a sudden movement of the soul from one to the other extreme, and in fact it is ever at one point only, as in the case of a firebrand. Be it so, but at least this indicates agility if not expanse of soul.

354. Man's nature is not always to advance; it has its advances and retreats.

Fever has its cold and hot fits; and the cold proves as well as the hot the greatness of the fire of fever.

The discoveries of men from age to age turn out the same. The kindness and the malice of the world in general are the same. Plerumque gratae principibus vices.[47]

355. Continuous eloquence wearies.

Princes and kings sometimes play. They are not always on their thrones. They weary there. Grandeur must be abandoned to be appreciated. Continuity in everything is unpleasant. Cold is agreeable, that we may get warm.

"Hearken unto me, my people, and give ear unto me; for a law shall proceed from me, and I will make my judgment to rest for a light of the Gentiles."

Amos viii. The prophet, having enumerated the sins of Israel, said that God had sworn to take vengeance on them.

He says this: "And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day; and I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation.

"You all shall have sorrow and suffering, and I will make this nation mourn as for an only son, and the end therefore as a bitter day. Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord. And they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east; they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the Lord, and shall not find it.

"In that day shall the fair virgins and young men faint for thirst. They that have followed the idols of Samaria, and sworn by the god of Dan, and followed the manner of Beersheba, shall fall, and never rise up again."

Amos 3:2: "Ye only have I known of all the families of the earth for my people."

Daniel 12:7. Having described all the extent of the reign of the Messiah, he says: "All these things shall be finished, when the scattering of the people of Israel shall be accomplished."

Haggai 2:4: "Ye who, comparing this second house with the glory of the first, despise it, be strong, saith the Lord, be strong, O Zerubbabel, and O Jesus, the high priest, be strong, all ye people of the land, and work. For I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts; according to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so my spirit remaineth among you. Fear ye

We are well satisfied.

We must see if this fine philosophy has gained nothing certain from so long and so intent study; perhaps at least the soul will know itself. Let us hear the rulers of the world on this subject. What have they thought of her substance? 394.[10] Have they been more fortunate in locating her? 395. What have they found out about her origin, duration, and departure? Harum sententiarum, 399.[11]

Is, then, the soul too noble a subject for their feeble lights? Let us, then, abase her to matter and see if she knows whereof is made the very body which she animates and those others which she contemplates and moves at her will. What have those great dogmatists, who are ignorant of nothing, known of this matter? 393.[12]

This would doubtless suffice, if Reason were reasonable. She is reasonable enough to admit that she has been unable to find anything durable, but she does not yet despair of reaching it; she is as ardent as ever in this search, and is confident she has within her the necessary powers for this conquest. unworthy of God to unite Himself to wretched man; but it is not unworthy of God to pull him out of his misery.

511. If we would say that man is too insignificant to deserve communion with God, we must indeed be very great to judge of it.

512. It is, in peculiar phraseology, wholly the body of Jesus Christ, but it cannot be said to be the whole body of Jesus Christ. The union of two things without change does not enable us to say that one becomes the other; the soul thus being united to the body, the fire to the timber, without change. But change is necessary to make the form of the one become the form of the other; thus the union of the Word to man. Because my body without my soul would not make the body of a man; therefore my soul united to any matter whatsoever will make my body. It does not distinguish the necessary condition from the sufficient condition; the union is necessary, but not sufficient. The left arm is not the right.

Impenetrability is a property of matter.

Identity de numero in regard to the same time requires the identity of matter.

Thus if God united my soul to a body in China, the same body, idem numero would be in China.

The same river which runs there is idem numero as that which runs at the same time in China.

513. Why God has established prayer.

1. To communicate to His creatures the dignity of causality.

2. To teach us from whom our virtue comes.

3. To make us deserve other virtues by work.

(But to keep His own pre-eminence, He grants prayer to whom He pleases.)

Objection: But we believe that we hold prayer of ourselves.

This is absurd; for since, though having faith, we cannot have virtues, how should we have faith? Is there a greater distance between infidelity and faith than between faith and virtue?

Merit. This word is ambiguous.

Meruit habere Redemptorem.7

Adam, Jesus Christ.

If you are united to God, it is by grace, not by nature. If you are humbled, it is by penitence, not by nature.

Thus this double capacity...

You are not in the state of your creation.

As these two states are open, it is impossible for you not to recognise them. Follow your own feelings, observe yourselves, and see if you do not find the lively characteristics of these two natures. Could so many contradictions be found in a simple subject?

Incomprehensible. Not all that is incomprehensible ceases to exist. Infinite number. An infinite space equal to a finite.

Incredible that God should unite Himself to us. This consideration is drawn only from the sight of our vileness. But if you are quite sincere over it, follow it as far as I have done and recognise that we are indeed so vile that we are incapable in ourselves of knowing if His mercy cannot make us capable of Him. For I would know how this animal, who knows himself to be so weak, has the right to measure the mercy of God and set limits to it, suggested by his own fancy. He has so little knowledge of what God is that he does not know what he himself is, and, completely disturbed at the sight of his own state, dares to say that God cannot make him capable of communion with Him.

But I would ask him if God demands anything else from him than the knowledge and love of Him, and why, since his nature is capable of love and knowledge, he believes that God cannot make Himself known and lov

--The sceptre till the Messiah--without king or prince.

The eternal law--changed.

The eternal covenant--a new covenant.

Good laws--bad precepts. Ezekiel.

687. Types.--When the word of God, which is really true, is false literally, it is true spiritually. Sede a dextris meis:136 this is false literally, therefore it is true spiritually.

In these expressions, God is spoken of after the manner of men; and this means nothing else but that the intention which men have in giving a seat at their right hand, God will have also. It is then an indication of the intention of God, not of His manner of carrying it out.

Thus when it is said, "God has received the odour of your incense, and will in recompense give you a rich land," that is equivalent to saying that the same intention which a man would have, who, pleased with your perfumes, should in recompense give you a rich land, God will have towards you, because you have had the same intention as a man has towards him to whom he presents perfumes. So iratus est, a "jealous God," etc. For, the things of God being inexpressible, they cannot be spoken of otherwise, and the Church makes use of them even to-day: Quia confortavit seras,137 etc.

It is not allowable to attribute to Scripture the meaning which is not revealed to us that it has. Thus, to say that the closed mem of Isaiah signifies six hundred, has not been revealed. It might be said that the final tsade and he deficientes may signify mysteries. But it is not allowable to say so, and still less to say this is the way of the philosopher's stone. But we say that the literal meaning is not the true meaning, because the prophets have themselves said so.

When I see the blindness and the wretchedness of man, when I regard the whole silent universe and man without light, left to himself and, as it were, lost in this corner of the universe, without knowing who has put him there, what he has come to do, what will become of him at death, and incapable of all knowledge, I become terrified, like a man who should be carried in his sleep to a dreadful desert island and should awake without knowing where he is and without means of escape. And thereupon I wonder how people in a condition so wretched do not fall into despair. I see other persons around me of a like nature. I ask them if they are better informed than I am. They tell me that they are not. And thereupon these wretched and lost beings, having looked around them and seen some pleasing objects, have given and attached themselves to them. "Assuming" it was a "real" testimonial - there would have been no issue with providing such information at the get go!

Also - his "web site" "CLAIMS" - his partners are the likes of Mouser, RF Parts among others. I highly doubt that. They don't need him as a partner - to further their business. I wonder if they know of his claims? Just because he might "order" from them - does "not" make them "partners". Talk about "False Advertising" or would it be "Wishful thinking"?

Where is the documents showing they own a part of his business - or he - theirs - to make them "Partners"?

Brian - you're so full of shit - no Sewage facilitiy known to man - could treat it all. IF you want to be in business - the "least" you could do - is be honest iwith your <potential> customers. - if not with yourself.

Toledo area keyclown, Robert Trendel, previously known as DC in local CB circles, found out that crossing the AKC is not very smart.

Trendel, 38, a keyclown with many documented and reported violations of FCC rules, took his amateur radio license test on January 12, at the TMRA VEC event. He passed his general, and on January 16 was awarded KD8HPA.

Enter the AKC.

Sending the FCC Enforcement folks video of Trendel operating on illegal frequencies and modes, the AKC saw to it that Trendel's new license was revoked. As of this writing the license was still visible on QRZ.com but has been removed from the FCC database. The regular enforcement actions notices published on the web in various venues will confirm.

This action was taken in honor of the gay keyclown moparholic@hotmail.com, also known as moparhoLICK, in appreciation of his activities in NE Ohio truckstop toilets.

Keyclownism is a disease. AKC cured this case permanently.

I have told that canine cuckolded fairyboy that hams are heterosexual...he has a gay hardon for me and he is frustrated cuz his lust is unrequited. It is OK though, moparhoLICK dances to the AKC's tune on command. He can't help himself. Always nice to have some amusement on the internet, especially when it is from a turdhunk like moparhoLICK.

Any openings into any particular areas? I've not been on 10 for so long - I can't remember when. Got almost "all" of my WAS on there. I think I had like 3 or 4 states left to get. Maybe I'll meander up to the shack and fire up the rig and see what I can hear. Who knows - I might get lucky and get a couple more of those I need.

Been done.
Not with the Splattermax, but something rather more basic. After all, the Splattermax does seem rather an over-kill for a basic AGC requirement.

The main part used at the time was a reasonably cheap, simple (8 pin) Plessey chip. I believe that chip may now be obsolete, but I could check.

Also, some FM detector ICs have a DC volume control. Feedback to this may achieve the desired effect.

Maybe someone could make a similar device for Christmas, when the family get together. The high compression of the SplatterMax may just about compensate for the Mother-in-law's big mouth.

Still, it's only twice a year... once when she stops by at Christmas and again when shy passes by at Halloween.

Regards,
Peter.

When you turn the key to IGN... do you hear the pump running inside the tank? It will only run for a few seconds. This is normal.

What an f'ing hoot. The whole group was yanked because both you and some other fool were flooding the group, it had nothing to do with attacks on you!!! You are the main reason it got yanked, same thing that Doug Adair did on a couple of website. They got so many complaints, they just yanked the group instead of dealing with the moron.
Now that being said, if one wants to see if Mark lost his account, all they have to do is check his posts via Google. If none are through Tera news, then it got yanked. I'll bet if you check posts made on some of the other ham groups you'll find post done through Tera news, that will show everyone that Mark's a liar!!!

homes? But the Governor did not propose to be compromised. He wrote to the Secretary of State at London: "I believe I only anticipate your instructions, in giving orders that the law, whatever may be the consequences to the brothel system, should be strictly enforced so as to secure the freedom of the women." But he reckoned without his host. The Secretary of State did not stand by the Governor. So far as the records show, the Governor and Chief Justice stood alone, his entire Executive Council taking the opposing side. What was to be done?

CHAPTER 11.

THE MAN FOR THE OCCASION.

Consistency demanded that either the brothel system at Hong Kong should be abolished, or domestic slavery and so-called "adoption" should be tolerated. No other courses were open. In his perplexity, the Governor asked his learned Chinese interpreter, Dr. Eitel, to give him further light as to this domestic slavery and "adoption" prevalent among the Chinese. This request was granted in a document entitled "Domestic servitude in relation to slavery." Dr. Eitel's main points were:

Slavery as known to the Westerner "has always been an incident of race." "Slavery, therefore, has such a peculiar meaning ... that one ought to hesitate before applying the term rashly" to Chinese domestic slavery. Slavery in China grows out of the fact that the father has all power, even to death, over his family. The father, on the other hand, "has many duties as well as rights." Therefore his power over his family "is not a mark of tyranny, but of religious unity." "Few foreigners have comprehended the extent of social equality, ... the amount of influence which woman, bought and sold as she is, really has in China,... the depth of domestic affection, of filial piety, of paternal care." On September 29th, 1879, the Chief Justice sentenced more criminals for trafficking in children. A Japanese girl, Sui Ahing, eleven years old, was brought to the Colony by a Chinaman who had bought the child in Japan of its parents. Needing money to go on to his native place, this Chinaman borrowed $50 of a native resident at Hong Kong, and left the child as security for the debt. The wife of the man in whose custody the child was left beat the child severely and she ran out of the house. She was found wandering on the street late at night, and the finder took her and sold her to another Chinese party, who threatened to send her to Singapore as a prostitute. It was plain the last purchaser intended either to send her to Singapore or keep her at into the life of open prostitution, all the presumptive evidence should have turned such a case as this against the informer. Many similar cases of the conviction of women of being keepers and inmates of secret brothels, were secured on this sort of evidence. One young girl of 14 was entrapped by marked money being found in her toilet table. The court records showed that this was the second time she had been entrapped in this manner. This second time she was convicted and sent to the Lock Hospital where, upon examination, exceptional conditions demonstrated beyond doubt that she was still a virgin. But what of the many young girls with whom exceptional conditions did not exist, when _they_ were brought to the examination table?

During the year 1873, two women were severely injured by jumping out of their windows to escape the informers. One fractured her leg.

The cook of Inspector King testified in the Registrar General's court: "Yesterday I received orders of Mr. King to go to Wanchai, and see if I could catch some unlicensed prostitutes." This man was employed, and his employer orders him off to this wicked business, and he must either obey or take his discharge. A Chinese servant ordered to go commit adultery by the man who employed him as his cook. These things were constantly done by employers of Chinese men. Yet these native servants are all married men, for they marry so young in the Orient. And Government money was furnished them besides to pay for the debauchery, and if they brought in a good case for prosecution they got a reward in money besides. So this cook is ordered off by his master to "catch some unlicensed prostitutes," with the same _sang froid_ as though ordered to go catch some fish for dinner. The cook seemed to know where to get the most ardent assistance for the task his employer had set him, for he

Such testimony is valuable from papers which have consistently supported the Contagious Diseases Ordinances and vilified the opponents of the State regulation of vice. There can be little doubt that a large proportion of the girls and young women who are brought to the Straits Settlements for immoral purposes have been sold in China to the brothel-keepers' confederates. In many cases girls are thus sold by their parents for the payment of gambling and other debts, and sometimes, alas, to provide money for the purchase of opium. Surely it is a burning shame that British Colonies should have become the market for the sale of Chinese women into this diabolical form of slavery.

This article cannot be closed without a brief reference to another and more subtle form of slavery which is well known to exist in the Straits. The last Report of the Chinese Protectorate reveals the fact that during last year (1892) in Singapore alone 426 pr

This was the incident which led to the appointment of the Commission

Later, Governor Hennessy wrote to the Colonial Office:

of compromise with slavery; and to this extent the title of this book applies to them.

The vices of European and American men in the Orient have not been the development of climate but of opportunity. It is not so easy in Christian lands to stock immoral houses with slaves, for the reason that the slaves are not present with which to do it. Women have freedom and cannot be openly bought and sold even in marriage; women have self-reliance and self-respect in a Christian country; they have a clean, decent religion; women who worship the true God have His protecting arm to defend themselves, and through them other women who do not personally worship God share in the benefits. If free, independent women of God were as scarce in America as in Hong Kong the same moral conditions would prevail here, without regard to climate, for, _if women could be bought and sold and reduced by force to prostitution, there are libertines enough, and they have propensities strong enough to enter at once upon the business, even in America_.
That which has elevated women above this slave condition is the development of a self-respect and dignity born of the Christian faith.
But let us take warning. If the women of America have not the decent self-respect to refuse to tolerate the Oriental slave-prostitute in this country, the balance will be lost, li is to be feared that henceforth the practice of infanticide will extremely increase beyond what it ever was. The heinousness of the violation of the great Creator's benevolence, which constitutes infanticide, is beyond comparison with the indulgence granted to the system of buying and selling children to prolong their existence."

As though these benevolent persons only bought slaves for this one laudable purpose, to preserve their lives! "As regards the buyers, they look upon themselves as affording relief to distressed people, and consider the matter as an act akin to charity," etc.

A flood of light is let in upon the matter of the reluctance of British officials to move in the putting down of domestic slavery and the buying and selling of boys among the natives, in the following well-deserved thrust at the weak point in the armor of the British officials:

"The office of the Registrar-General was charged with the superintendence of prostitutes and the licensing of brothels and similar affairs. But _from 80 to 90 per cent of all these prostitutes in Hong Kong were brought into these brothels by purchase, as is well known to everybody_. If buying and selling is a matter of a criminal character, the proper thing would be, first of all, to abolish this evil (brothel slavery). But how comes

Col Ashby Foote USA ret wrote:

UK Memorial

It is a matter of history that when Supreme Commander of the Allied Forces, General Dwight Eisenhower, found the victims of the death camps he ordered all possible photographs to be taken, and for the German people from surrounding villages to be ushered through the camps and even made to bury the dead.

He did this because he said in words to this effect: "Get it all on record now
- get the films - get the witnesses -because somewhere down the track of history some bastard will get up and say that this never happened"

"All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing."
Edmund Burke

In Memorial

This week, the UK removed The Holocaust from its school curriculum because it "offended" the Muslim population which claims it never occurred. This is a frightening portent of the fear that is gripping the world and how easily each country is giving into it.

It is now more than 60 years after the Second World War in Europe ended. This e-mail is being sent as a memorial chain, in memory of the:

six million Jews,

20 million Russians,

10 million Christians, and 1,900 Catholic priests, who were murdered, massacred, raped, burned, starved and humiliated while the German and Russian peoples looking the other way!

Now, more than ever, with Iran, among others, claiming the Holocaust to be "a myth," it is imperative to make sure the world never forgets.

This e-mail is intended to reach 40 million people worldwide!

Be a link in the memorial chain and help distribute this around the world.

How many years will it be before the attack on the World Trade Center "never happened" because it offends some Muslim in the U.S. ??????

Don't just delete this. It will take a minute to pass this along.

Can you provide proof that the UK has removed holocaust subjects from Oh, Mork. You better save this post so you can show Hughes that you are the "victum" and not the perpetrator.

PLEASE NOTE THAT THE EMAIL POSTED ABOVE IS A HOAX.

See http://www.snopes.com/politics/religion/holocaust.asp

I also found a similar report on Deborah Lipstadt's blog:
http://lipstadt.blogspot.com/2007/04/chancellor-gordon-brown-scotches-rumors.html Lipstadt, by the way, wrote the definitive book on the history of holocaust denial.

There was a link to a very interesting article on this in Ha'Aretz (copied below) and on the perils of being overly credulous about what we get in our inbox and posting them or forwarding them before we check them out.

Ken

Break the chain
By Esther Solomon

"Disgrace for England!" screams the subject of the e-mail circulating the globe. "This week in England every memorial of the Holocaust has been removed from the schools study programs arguing it hurts the Muslim population that denies the Holocaust." The undated e-mail goes on to assert that this act of appeasement is irrefutable proof that anti-Semitism is alive and kicking, 60 years after the end of World War II, and that this is a sign of an "upcoming world disaster." And what is the author's recommendation to the shocked recipient? "Never to forget," and no less important, to forward the e-mail on to another 10 as-yet-unenlightened friends.

You needn't be English to be alarmed by such a news flash, which seems to suggest not only that history curricula are the latest casualty in the advance of cultural relativism and the collapse of liberal values, but also that it's British Muslims who are behind the onslaught.

The problem with such whipped-up indignation is that the e-mail is based on falsehood, a malign reading of a report commissioned earlier this year by the United Kingdom's Department for Education and Skills to look at how the school system contended with the teaching of sensitive subjects like slavery, the Crusades and the Holocaust.

In setting out the case for why such a study was needed, the report noted: "A history department in a northern city recently avoided selecting the Holocaust as a topic... for fear of confronting anti-Semitic sentiment and Holocaust denial among some Muslim pupils." Indeed, a shocking incident. But the whole point of the report was to provide tools and support to all the U.K.'s 4,500 high schools, to help them avoid precisely this kind of aberrant behavior when teaching sensitive subjects.

In fact, never before has Holocaust education in the U.K. enjoyed such support, in terms of both policy and finances. In 2001, the same year as Holocaust Memorial Day was first observed in Britain, the subject became part of the compulsory national curriculum. The government has provided funding for a fixed number of 11th and 12th graders, from every school in the country, to visit Auschwitz with the Holocaust Educational Trust (HET). Thousands of school groups visit permanent exhibitions on the Holocaust around the country, and specialist programs offer teachers skills and materials to teach their pupils about it.

The situation is a quantum leap from the low-key and poor-quality education we received at school 20 years ago, where, as the token Jewish pupil in my class, I was actually invited to give "the Holocaust lesson," as the teacher had no materials, knowledge nor, indeed, any special interest in the topic.

If the situation is so bright, then why does this bogus message, which has been circulating in varied e-mail forms since April of this year, refuse to die?

In the British context, one has to see the apprehension as one element in the fervent debates currently under way regarding the status, identity and agenda of the country's two-million-strong Muslim community. In the context of open European borders giving rise to a new scale of immigration, the phenomenon of home-grown Muslim bombers in London and Glasgow, and a focus on the consequences of the U.K.'s policies of multiculturalism, the tone of the debate ranges from nuanced discussions on the meaning of citizenship to a far more uncontrolled and undiscriminating swell of anti-Muslim feeling.

But those who forward such an e-mail are unthinkingly buying into a characterization of the Muslim community as inherently hostile to Western and Jewish memory, as if the two communities were engaged in a zero-sum confrontation over cultural power which, if the Jewish community were to lose, would lead again to its threatened annihilation.

No less interesting, though, is why chain e-mails like these garner such traction, especially as the Internet facilitates such easy confirmation - or repudiation - of all kinds of spurious "facts." The answer lies in the role of the Web and of e-mail in particular in popular culture.

In an era of lethargy and of disillusionment with conventional politics, but also at a time in which the unknown individual can magnify his voice virally many thousands of times through e-mail, the idea of alternative activism at the touch of a button is clearly appealing. For those with ideological agendas, e-mail is a perfect weapon. It offers anonymity, speedy and effortless diffusion, the difficulty of a wholesale refutation - rebuttals never enjoy the same reach as the original allegation - and the networked power of distribution (and complicit endorsement) through one's peers.

But before forwarding a chain e-mail, out of an indefinite sense of righteous indignation, resist the herd instinct.

Consider whether you yourself really stand behind the facts and sentiments expressed in it, or whether you are allowing yourself to be cynically manipulated into feeling a fleeting sense of purpose and participation that overrides your better judgment. As a talkback on the HET Web site put it, "save the mobilization for real causes."

At the same time, you might want to spare a thought for the hapless University of Kentucky. It appears that in an earlier version of the "Disgrace to England!" e-mail, someone in cyberspace "translated" the "U.K." into the University of Kentucky as the location of the educational pseudo-crisis. Hundreds of thousands of e-mails are now circulating accusing the university of dropping Holocaust studies, prompting frantic denials by university authorities, whose Web site insists that their school "is not afraid to teach students about the Holocaust."

Who's next? The universities of Kansas, Khartoum or Kerala? Is any more proof needed regarding the integrity of the "brains" behind e-mail panic campaigns, and the gullibility of chain e-mail forwarders?

Why is it you respond to every post with some sort of reference to homosexuality?
Is it because you have tendencies toward those types of activities?

Hello Steve:

Look for the cable being rusty, I have seen them rusted thru almost.
Look at the pulley's see if they are cracked, bent, or frozen.

Extend the tower out laying on its side is ok look for bent tower pieces.

Look for crackes in the bottom piece at the top, this is where the most stress is.

A good welder can straighten it, at several hundred dollars.

Don't buy a light weight TV Antenna type tower, that was made to get a TV antenna up to say 60 feet.

We put a Crusader 10K 5 element yagi beam up on one of those cheap shit light weight towers. The hole tower twisted in light to med winds, NOT GOOD. So we had to take it all down, what a pisser!!!!!!

So a newer heavy duty tower had to be bought and installed. If we left the C-10K Beam Antenna up there with the rotor, and VHF and other antennas, it would have all come crashing down maybe even hurting someone.

Its always cheaper and easier to do it right the expensive way the first time around.

Take pictures and send them to me

Why would a ham radio op want a cb amp? There are plenty of good ham amps you can purchase without buying a piece of cb junk.

most amps are designed on the same types of circuits. the only reason CB amps are viewed as junk is usually by fault of the operator overdriving them.

besides, a little extra added filtering and matching inside the amp will do wonders for its efficiency and performance.

and considering they are dirt cheap, its easy to purchase them and the parts needed to make them better. I don't see why we should pay $1,000 or more for an amp that produces 1KW at the antenna terminal when once can purchase the parts cheaper and use a CB amp as a low level driver (its easy to do for those of us with tech skills).

If I understand you're ramblings, you are accusing me of stalking (of course that's one of your favorite sayings). Not hardly, I post how often Mark? Once maybe twice a week? I have complained about this guy how many times Mark? Once? Twice? Have I gone to other newsgroups and made a single post in reference to him? You? Anyone else?
Your just pissed because I cross posted this and have gotten on your case for doing the very same thing. Difference is that I have only done it once, while you have done it THOUSANDS OF TIMES!!! Saying things like "Fake", "Get Kelp", some 50 to 100 times a day. That's the reason you lost your posting privileges on TeraNews.
Same time, I think the amateur community should know what one of their own is acting like. It does not shine well to others if they are considering going to test for the exam, if this is what they will be expecting from the amateur radio service..

585. Musica barroca en sonidos electrónicos

Más Música Barroca en Sonidos Electrónicos.
Por José Fajardo.

Recientemente fue editado un nuevo CDs de música alternativa, consiste este CD en una producción de música barroca con algunos preludios y fugas y otras obras de J. S. Bach, esta vez en interpretación del investigador musical Jesús López quien en la realización de este interesante CD utilizó sonoridades obtenidas con los conocidos sintetizadores Moog. La idea de la utilización de instrumentos novedosos no es tan nueva, fue Mozart quien inició la tradición de interpretar obras antiguas con instrumentos nuevos y distintos, realizando asi arreglos de los preludios y fugas del clave bien temperado para orquesta, siendo estas obras escritas originalmente para teclado, sin mencionar que para ese entonces, estas maravillosas obras en forma de manuscritos reposaban en algunas bibliotecas privadas. Mas tarde otros músicos en colaboración con inventores de nuevos aparatos de la era electrónica han continuado de modo singular esta modalidad tan llamativa, recordemos los famosos performances de Walter Carlos de los años 60´s Swich on Bach y otras producciones de músicos no tan conocidos. En estas nuevas producciones de J. López, inspiradas en el viejo estilo Moog de los 60´s, escucharemos obras como la Fantasía en Sol, Preludio con fughetta, Preludio y fuga nº XIV (del Clave Bien Temperado) y otras. Estos samples pueden ser escuchados en esta dirección electrónica:

Esta misma dirección de correo electrónica sirve también, para solicitar por Internet a buen precio ejemplares de estos CDs de López.

your thread jacking for one.
your homosexual agenda you attempt to force on the entire news group.
your continued off topic spamming.
your cross posting to unrelated groups.
your continued floods of nonsense.
your preoccupation with child pornography.
your preoccupation with bestiality.

See above on Google Search, never ever have I added a LOL!!!! You are like this kid I went to school with in Mayberry R.F.D. Every time someone even said something that he didn't like, he went crying to the teacher, bemoaning "their picking on me". Well all it took was more than a few times and the teacher told him to learn to live with it (using stick & stones theory) and that if you went around crying about every little thing, you're life was going to be unbearable.

As for calling me a Nazi, ROTFLMFAO!!!! (I belong to beyttikkun).

Mark admitted that he purposely floods this and other groups with the documented statement, "I post or flood as I deem neede to achiv e my golas but you can't understand that"

See www.stopkb9rqz.blogspot.com (bottom most post) for a screen shot of Mark's admission taken from HIS blog. Mark has since removed it, but did so too late to cover his arse.

Mark, when confronted, first claimed that DeLorean forged this comment. Then, when proven to be a liar, Mark next claimed that DeLorean took Mark's admission out of context. Get your lies straight, Mork.

Markie sure tries to dance around his lies. The trouble is that he has told so many that he can't keep all of them straight so he does the next best thing. He lies even more.

(no graphic included so Mark can see this post via his Google accounts)

Keep those letters to Hughes coming, folks. We got him TOS'd from Teranews and Hughes has already warned him.

The U.S. Justice Department says one in 33 men in the United States has been a victim of a rape or attempted rape, compared with one in six women. Experts say men are far less likely to report a rape because they fear being perceived as weak.

While this is true on most cases, Mark Morgan wrote of allegedly being raped by four men while Mark was supposedly serving in the Army.
Mark alleges, in his own words,"well the army defines that at 5 atplus attackers I dealt with 4 2 of whome deid that night"
Then Mark spins the tale even further when he said,

no steve I was able to throw one of them out the widow being the 4th floor the concrete killed I suppose the other died of a repurted set of balls from my boot athrid was hosiptalizded and can never sire a kid the last died in prison being gangraped himself"

Mark further said,

"I tossed one out the window repurtured another guys balls and he bleed to death hiding from theMP's"

I don't know about you, but this sounds like one of Mark's Fairy Tales (pun intended) to me.

Bear in mind, this is the original post Mark made last year. His story has by now most likely changed.

Mark even made the claim that he was drafted into This Man's Army as a Lt.
Colonel. Then he said he was a lieutentant. He never did get his story straight.

Then on Dec 31, 2006 Mark said that the Army wanted to call him back. He said,

"no they want to do soemthing I have never done before lead men in battle the war is treching things quuit e abit
I tell em no hell no and no fucking way"

Mark Morgan is clearly living in a comic book world.

And the topper? Mark claims that there is no record of his military service.
Why? Because, he claims, the Fed. Govt. allowed him to serve under a false name due to top secret issues. What a neat lie to falsify his non-existent record.

Mark lied again and again and continues to do so to this day.

Mark is quite the accomplished liar.

10m is not CB. It is amateur radio. Full access to the band is granted with the general class license. The technician class license only grants access to a segment of 10m.

Once you pass the Technician exam, you can use voice (Upper SideBand) from 28.300-28.500 on the 10-Meter band with a power limit of 200 watts. Snoop

Hello Vinnie S:

Yeah one needs to use his or her own Bird Watt Meter and Dummy Load to thin out the Magic CB/Ham Wattage ratings.

I bought a old vintage amp several years ago that was supposed to do 400 to 700 watts out, of course from the seller.

But it really did 180 on a Bird Watt Meter, not any where close to the advertised output level. I talked to the amps manufacture, they said my power measurements where all your going to get from the low power amp.
But it had a very clean output.

So buyer be ware. Again bring your watt meter and dummy load, and watch em change the story real quick!

The output of the four 6jg6a tubes is mostly additive to the output of the four 6lb6 tubes. That being said the total PEP output for brief periods can be as high as 1000 watts. More accurately this amp should be described as a 400 watt amp.

No Mark,

What I don't understand is why you believe that YOU need to be the internet cop.

I have learned and educated more people on the rec.radio.cb newsgroup than any HAM operator. My specialty is amplifiers.... Big amplifiers.

I have learned that there are more people that want to learn in the rec.radio.cb community than there are on ANY of the HAM groups that I have been on. A fact which does, in some ways, bother me. But, do I have to go spewing BS about how so and so is wrong because they won't let me talk? No, I don't. Do I go around acting like a snitch (nobody likes a snitch!!) quoting people on a rec.radio.cb group, cross-posting and pulling messages from the cb newsgroup to the ham newsgroup, knowing full and well the animosity between radio services? No, I don't.

Then you seem to take a perverse pleasure in the fact that because nobody on the rec.radio.cb newsgroup trusts you because of the above mentioned facts that they all resort to email. This sucks. It means that a lot of good dialog that would have gone on won't. It means that a lot of people new to the group cannot see what is talked about, ask questions and "sandbag" and just read... There are hundreds, if not thousands, of readers to rec.radio.cb that never post, but do learn. Let's go ahead and stifle the education process because Mark Fuller doesn't like the fact that we are discussing RF amplifiers on a CB newsgroup.... We all have to watch what we say on rec.radio.cb now because Mark Fuller gives off the "aura" that he will turn in anyone, help prosecute anyone, divulge info on request and just basically act like someone you don't want around.

I can't really see where it should bother you that the majority of the CB useage in America happens above 40 or below 1. Why do you let it bother you that other people are breaking the law? Most of the users on the "funny" channels are running equipment cleaner than your CB radio.... They don't generally bleed, they use ham equipment, and they are not bothering you on channel 23 or whatever your home channel is.... As a matter of fact, I would think that you, as the law abiding citizen staying in the normal 40 channels, would be delighted to know that there are millions of other people not on your channel, but who are above or below! Less traffic to "step on you", as you so eloquently put it... But, for some reason, you just knowing that those people exist, and they are doing something illegal, just puts a burr under your ass that won't stop, huh? Although it has no direct relation to you, you can't leave it alone!

Mark, you are welcome to do whatever you want to do... I don't try to stop what you do, but I don't like it, and I don't like what you represent. I think it is complete BS, and the majority of the people on the rec.radio.cb group don't like you, don't trust you, and don't want you around. Take your legal BS somewhere else and leave the CB newsgroup out of this..... And don't think that you need to attempt to get the ham community from rec.radio.amateur.policy involved by feeding off there inherent hatred towards the CB community.

What kind of meter do you use to measure this. Get a real meter. NO way will these tubes d0 this. Think about it, for even 700 watts out it will take at least 1100 watts DC into the finales.The power supply can not do this.

You'd be surprised what one transformer can supply for a couple of seconds. Eight tubes, not four, can produce 1000 watts for a brief period, just long enough to steady the needle and not fry the tubes or power supply. Note that I am not suggesting that this amp should be run this way. If it is it's life would be short lived.

What a supply should be rated for and what it can supply are two different things. You can get 2000 watts out of the transformer. It's just a matter of how brief the time period for measurement is. In the above amp I would guess that for the time it takes to steady a meter (one second) it could supply 1500 watts input.

Well, both Galaxy and Cobra make fine CB Radios. It all depend's on what bells and whistles you wish to have, like Talk Back, Echo's, etc.

First of all, if you live in the U.S., you'll need to pass the Technicians exam since 10-meters is on the 'Ham' bands. After you pass, you'll be able to operate voice from 28.300-28.500 USB with 200 watts maximum P.E.P. Also, 10-meters does not have any 'channels'. You will however find various people/clubs who may hang-out on specific frequencies, but there is no 'Truckers Channel.' To find out more about ham radio, visit these sites:

Hello Tom:

There are 10 meter radios out there that seem to be made for use on the CB Channels, that have more power and such.

I had a 10 meter radio that would work on both 10 and 11 meters. But gave it away because there was no activity on 10 or 11 meters. It had a great noise reduction ability in the receive for mobile operation, but it wasn't anything to write home about.

The new sun spot cycle is supposed to start soon so keep you ears on for skip conditions.

I use a Icom 746 Pro for mobile use at times. I am not a big time radio usage type I guess.

Suggest you look up the manufactures off Goggle and see what that say.

Why did Mark attack MS Flint? Because he's a low life coward,thats why. He knows in his heart he's nothing more than sick fruit. A second

|What kind of meter do you use to measure this. Get a real meter. NO way
|will these tubes d0 this. Think about it, for even 700 watts out it will

Given the right power supply you can. Then again you may be a better judge of what the capacity of a transformer has by meer observation. Yes I know nothing of that particular amp. Yes I am very well aware of the capabilities of horizontal sweep yubes used in linear amps. Also a majority of CB amps using sweep tubes end up biasing them in class C and they are not linear amps. In class C the DC input would be closer to 1KW. If biased class AB1 then yes you would be closer to about 1.3KW DC input.

Hello RJ:

Any good tech or radio enthusiasts can put any mic on any radio.

The Motorola Radios use a buffer or slight pre-amp in the mic to up the audio level a little. And yeah they shoot up I think around 8 volts DC from the radio to the mic to run the pre-amp.

But a blocking capacitor can isolate the mic element from the 8 Volts DC. But if the D-104 mic uses a pre-amp the 8 volts can power the pre-amp.

The older Motorola Commercial Mic's can be converted to work with the Motorola CB radios. I have a old Motorola System 500 Mobile Radio. Its stock as they come but it has the best noise canceling receiver I have ever heard. Nothing like running down the freeway noise free and being able to talk to all the locals on a noise free radio.

The commercial mic's will need a new shielded mic cord like in any other CB radio. If the radio requires many wires to switched back and forth for the PTT/Rec function then a relay can do all that being keyed from the Mic's PTT swich. I had a really bitchen converted Motorola Commercial Mic made for my system 500 mobile radio.
The stock CB Motorola Mic's where real fragile as the mic's dynamic coil would mic would open

It took some doing but was worth it, as all the chicks though I was a really bithcen guy. The guy's where afraid of me, as I had a "Book em Danno" type Mic! Which could also be used as backup weapon. Hehhehehe

Her behavior was quite ladylike. She was to the point and quite succinct.
The only exhibition of bad behavior was yours....when you called her an "eletist bitch".
By the way, Mark. You misspelled Elitist, but what else is new?

What is your problem, Mark? Do you dislike intelligent women? Does Dee bring out your inferiority complex?
Or is she simply too "sassy" for your liking?

Ten meters isn't a cb band, you need an Amateur (Ham) Radio Operators license to operate there.

A 10 meter radio cover 28.000 to 29.600. CB CH 19 is 27.185.

Any "10 meter" radio with a 40 channel selector knob and bands of channels is a CB, not a 10 meter radio. A 2950 or an 2510 are 10 meter radios because they do not have fixed frequency channels.

Any frequencies outside of 26.965 to 27.405 are called "freeband", but they are assigned to other users even though you don't hear them.

As others have said, 10 meters requires a ham ticket, and all of 10 meters is available to those holding general or extra. Techs only get 200 KHz of voice from 28.300 to 28.500.

Tech is a simple test and general is easy. Extra is a bear!

A Galaxy radio will change your personality. Everyone that has one is constantly asking for radio checks, the radios sound great, it is the operators that are so annoying. I recently bought a cobra and had to throw it in the trash because the receive was so bad on it. I own 3 Unidens and they are great. The Uniden pc68 elite is a whole inch smaller in width than the other radios you are lookin at, which makes finding an installation location a lot easier. The radio is no better than the antenna that is with it.

Must be that "quack-back" feature that lets them hear themselves.
It's to remind the operator about what they just said so they don't forget real quick and sound stoopider then they really are. ;-)

Hello Scott:

Yeah they came and threw a net over old Jack Gerritsen a while back and he is in jail for all his radio wrong doings.

Kind of sad tho as he no drought has mental problems.

His radio antics went on for years. Even HRO sold Hats with his name on them with a line diagonally thru his name.

He use to be on 147.435 the Zoo channel and hold his own nets.

Scrap the dual antenna idea unless you can get then 8 feet 6 inches apart.
One good antenna will perform better. Use a real mounted antenna, not a magnet mount. Make sure your grounds are good at RF, not just DC. The closer you get your antenna to the magic 8' 6" mark, the more efficient it is. 102" whip can't be beat and I like the Firestik KW-7.

Every one of my sideband radios pick up more hiss on LSB/USB then on AM.
ANd if you think SSB has loud static, try FM for some serious shot noise!

The fan looks like an add-on. Good idea.. Would it do maybe 500W peak?
No point in messing with lying sellers like that. Maybe his POS Dosy meter told him it was 1600W!

Here's one of my amps.
Hasn't been on 11 meters since it was a ham band in ancient days though.
http://www.bunkerofdoom.com/tuckerkw/20040209.html

-anyway I've been rebuilding this monster.. It has been fired up with RF, but still needs a little work. Technically is an amplifier, because it requires RF drive and audio drive, cannot transmit a thing without them. Basically it's a modulated RF power amplifier. Old COL Tucker really built the beast, may he R.I.P. 'Course to some of y'all super bowl playa's.. it ain't so big. Only 1 measly Kilowatt for the carrier, and only 4KW PEP when the audio gets going. Completely adjustable so I can run much less juice for keeping the ham radio commandments.. heh..
Lots of handwheels. It's got class.. separate HV supplies for the modulator and RF PA. No cheapness, no solid state, Variacs instead of cheap-ass little knobs..

(if I want to dumb down and use one damn knob to control the power of the radio from zero to max, I use this other radio set:
http://www.bunkerofdoom.com/kd5oei/rf301/index.html
but the topic is Amplifiers.)

And also, NO damn sweep tubes! I don't care if an amp has 20 of them in there, that kind of stuff is best used as unique items in a collection.
Darn sure won't stay keyed 24x7 for anything!

If it can't stay key down, while you go out of town, on your 2-week vacation tom-cattin' 'round.
The truth I expound, that rig's for a keyclown!

Some specs on my little pretty:

Modulator:
pair of 3-500Z in class AB2 grid drive transformer: UTC CG-512 drive requirements: 20 watts RMS/500 ohms output transformer: RCA BTA-1K modulating iron.
adjustable grid bias supply 0-50V adjustable modulator plate supply: 0-3500V/0.8A CCS

RF Amplifier:
4-1000A in class C, grid driven, bandswitched drive requirements: 20W Output: continuous L/C tuning, switched loading PI network adjustable filament supply 6-9 VAC/25A adjustable bias supply 0-300V/150mA adjustable screen supply 0-750V/200mA adjustable RF PA power supply: 0-3500V/0.8A CCS dimensions:

30"W x 24"D x 78"H 1450lbs.

power input: 240VAC/30A

HV supply topology
(two of these: one for RF, one for mod.):
-0-140V variac/30A rating
-5500VAC center tapped 1A transformer
-pair of 673 mercury vapor rectifiers FWCT circuit
-CLC filter: 8uF/5H/32uF
-bleeder of 35000 ohms/400W (got regulation?)

metering:
line 1 0-150VAC
line 2 0-150VAC
modulator bias 0-500VDC*
modulator plate voltage 0-4000VDC
modulator current 0-1A

PA filament voltage 0-10VAC
PA control grid voltage 0-500VDC
PA grid current 0-100mA
PA screen voltage 0-1000VDC
PA screen current 0-200mA
PA plate voltage 0-4000VDC
PA plate current 0-500mA

*the modulator bias voltage and supply is now scaled 0-50VDC since changing from 304TH tubes to 3-500Z's.

Other amps--
Also an NCL-2000 linear amp that will do about 900W, and this neat little SDP 1000L MARS 500W unit:

http://www.bunkerofdoom.com/kd5oei/sdp1000l/index.html

Now, wouldn't the 500 watt crowd rather have something nice like that than a set of 8 red-hot parallel sweep tubes in a crappy tin box? The problem is the only people cheaper CB radio operators are ham radio operators.

Annie's Naturals Issues Voluntary Nationwide Allergy Alert on Undeclared Soy in 8 fl oz. All-Natural Shiitake & Sesame Vinaigrette
Contact:
Aimee Sands
707-254-3700 ext. 103

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE -- Napa, CA -- February 11, 2008 -- Annie's Naturals is voluntarily recalling 686 cases of 8 fl oz. bottles of all-natural Shiitake & Sesame Vinaigrette. The product could be mislabeled and may contain soy sauce (contains soy and wheat) and sesame that were not declared on the ingredient statement. People who have an allergy or severe sensitivity to soy run the risk of serious allergic reaction if they consume this product.

There have been no illnesses or injuries reported to date. Anyone concerned about an illness should contact a physician immediately.

Affected product was shipped to grocery and natural food stores in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Washington, between December 20, 2007 and February 6, 2008.

Consumers can most easily identify impacted product by looking at the product labels - the front label says Shiitake & Sesame Vinaigrette, but the back label and ingredient statement say Low Fat Honey Mustard Vinaigrette. Only dressings with UPC # 0-92325-33319-2 with a Best By Date of 02/20/09/1/E and 02/20/09/2/E are affected.

Organic Shiitake & Sesame Vinaigrette, 16 oz. bottles of Shiitake & Sesame Vinaigrette, and other Annie's Naturals products are not affected by this recall.

The problem occurred during a product changeover when back labels for Honey Mustard Vinaigrette were commingled with back labels for all-natural Shiitake Sesame Vinaigrette. The Honey Mustard Vinaigrette products were unaffected.

Consumers who have purchased 8 fl oz all natural Shiitake & Sesame Vinaigrette are urged to return the product to the place of purchase for a full refund or may call Annie's Naturals Consumer Relations at 1.800.288.1089 to obtain a coupon for a free product.

More gimmick than reality. The Ultracapacitor can not help an electric vehicle accelerate or climb a hill as implied. It can only suppress very short term spikes or surges of battery drain that plague Li-ion batteries.
If you can limit these spikes you can also increase the weight of the vehicle which this SUV does. The drawback is this vehicle only has a 40 mile range. Hardly a selling point when you compare it to other electric vehicles shown at car shows.

Actually, the distribution is about 50/50 cbers and amateurs that own the VoiceMax module. Yesterday, I received a very nice email from an amateur in the UK. It reads:

Hi Brian, just to let you know the Voice Max arrived this morning.
I've stuffed it into my old Icom 735 and boy has it made a difference.
Using the standard HM-12 dynamic mic, used two tone to set the output rig is peaking higher and audio reports are very complimentary, but you know that already. Very impressive build quality, and easy install. Fitting cascaded Inrad 2800 SSB filters so that should further improve the audio quality. I've left positive feedback for you on e-bay.

Mark's alleged house fire in Illinois:

On December 31, 2007 you said," by local wit an email from some one in the ng as I have answered many time someone on anyof the Rec radios groups? What are the police doing about it some 2 or 5 years later? police finaly jail the torch but no action against the guy from the NG claiming I was a pedo

On March 03, 2007 you said, "I choose the path of resistance after the escalating filth result inthe posting of the address of another man mark mrak morgan as mine and his home being burned down"

On November 07, 2008 you said, (on Ham Island) "the cycle will go on the only question is how I tried leaving the web in 2000 the threats went offline into the real wrold with email to everyone around til they/he found someone unstable enough o believe an anonomous email and BURN my home becuase someone said I was X.

my home of those days is bruned out shell those that were getting the harrasing email are in jail the persp who are the same folks now as then are still at, still haven't manged to settle heh insurance on that matter

On February 14, 2008 you said in RRAP, "they deleyed for some time but are finaly nogating for setlement but they delayed the settle ment in part because you or people like youhave cominacated the unsopprted allegation 9 anbd the unsupertablesinc i could establisgh my wherabout that I did the deed, but twith an arson it always takes for ever to settle

So, Mark. To date your lies are difficult to keep up with. How did this happen, if it even DID happen?

You have said somebody else's house was burned down, someone with the same name as you. Then you claim that a neighbor burned your house down after receiving an email that you are a pedophile. The question that comes to mind is, how did somebody find out your alleged neighbor's email address? Why not was the email traced and the accuser brought to justice? That could easily have been accomplished.

You go on to say that your whereabouts on the night of the alleged fire were questioned and that you had to establish an alibi. This sounds to me as if you were or still are the prime suspect in the alleged arson.

Your comment that the "torch" is now languishing behind bars is also very highly suspect. As one who has had experience investigating an arson or two, Mark, your story is odd to say the least.

You say that the insurance company is just now negotiating with you over a settlement, after several years since the alleged incident. What does not ring true here, Mark, is that if the alleged arsonist is indeed incarcerated and, by extrapolation, either confessed or has been found guilty in a Court of Law, then the insurance company would have long ago settled with you since the guilty party has been brought to justice.

The fact that you claim a settlement is just now being negotiated leads me to believe that you are lying yet again. In fact, if it has taken years to even come close to an insurance settlement, I would have to speak from past experience that the insurance company still considers you to be a prime suspect even though they cannot prove it.

Yes, insurance settlements, in arson cases, CAN take years, but ONLY when the insurance company suspects the homeowner of being the arsonist. Why? Because in most cases the insurance companies refuse to pay full value and thereby "reward" the homeowner who was looking for a fast buck.

So. You are either lying about the entire alleged arson so as to garner pity as being a poor, beset upon "victim" or you are lying about the person who you claim is the responsible party. You've told so many convoluted tales about this alleged arson over the years that you simply cannot be believed.

I suspect that this arson story is a result of your kooky imagination and if it is indeed fact, then you better get your stories straight.

Whose house was it? Yours or somebody else's at another address with your same name as you said?

Don't answer. You will only spin yet more lies and nobody will believe a word you submit.

The CB site at http://www.citizensband.radiouk.com/ is now going wireless for mobile browsers.

I am presently testing the WAP site and, if any of you have WAP phones (xHTML, not old WML) with inclusive Internet (my provider gives me 1Mb free/month), I would appreciate any comments or reports.
The test site is at:
http://www.citizens-band.radiouk.com/mobile.php
The microphone wiring database is also available on the site:
http://www.citizens-band.radiouk.com/reference/mics_mob.php

Please remember that the site is for mobile devices, such as phones.
Although it will work in normal browsers, such as OE and Firefox, it could look rather strange on a big-ass computer screen.

Does anyone know of any other CB or radio related sites for wireless devices?

Regards,
Peter.

Yeah most here are hams and cb'ers.

Its going to be real interesting when shootin skip cycler #24 hits full force to see whats going to happen with the small 10 meter portion of the band that many are licensed for.

Pat thanks for the friendly posting, we don't see a lot of friendly ham postings. I wounder if the CB skip shootin would be so popular if the ham radio community was more friendly.

What's so hard about doing the math:
234/F(MHZ) = length per half.

A half wave dipole is 2 quarter wave sections.

How about a site that shows hows to build a 4:1 current balun?
And not a sleeve type or coiled coax choke, either, a real two torroid 4 to 1 BALanced to UNbalanced device.

894. American Red Cross Urges Public to Re-Build Blood Supply with Immediate Response

Baltimore, MD - February 13, 2008: Yesterday and today's winter weather cancelled several blood drives and left donor chairs empty at many other American Red Cross donation sites. Following the low donation rates through the winter, this sudden drop in appointments leaves the blood supply at an even greater risk for shortage. In response, the Greater Chesapeake and Potomac Region of the American Red Cross is urging all eligible whole blood donors to call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE to schedule a donation appointment right away. Platelet donors can call 1-800-272-2123 to schedule an appointment.

"School closures and liberal leave polices at many businesses forced us to cancel several blood drives and other drives have been poorly attended due to the weather," said Gary J. Ouellette, C.E.O. of the GC&P Region. "When donation rates drop, the community blood supply can diminish quickly. When the weather clears we will need to make up for that loss. We need to collect 1000 units of blood on a daily basis to meet the needs of local patients. That is why we need all eligible donors to call 1-800 GIVE LIFE right away to schedule an appointment."

Despite many medical advances, there is no substitute for human blood, and volunteer blood donations are the only patient lifeline. Local trauma victims, cancer patients, premature babies, and those with chronic blood disorders depend on a safe and adequate blood supply for survival.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE TO GIVE BLOOD? DONORS MUST:

• Be generally in good health;

• Be at least 17 years of age, or in the states of Maryland & Pennsylvania, 16 years of age w/ written parental consent;

• Weigh no less than 110 pounds;

• Have NOT received a tattoo within the past year;

• Have NOT donated whole blood within the past 56 days.

Members of the community are asked to call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE immediately to schedule an appointment to donate at any American Red Cross Donor Center or community blood drive. Information about Regional Blood Donor Centers or community blood drive locations and times can be found at www.my-redcross.org.

"You may be one of many consumers who have received e-mails saying youï¿½re about to be assaulted by unwanted telemarketing calls to your wireless phone. Rest assured that placing telemarketing calls to wireless phones is -- and always has been -- illegal in most cases.

Why the Confusion?

The confusion seems to stem from recent discussions in the wireless phone industry about establishing a wireless 411 phone directory, much like your traditional (wired) 411 phone directory. A number of e-mail campaigns seem to suggest that if your wireless telephone number is listed in a wireless 411 directory, it will be available to telemarketers, and you will start to receive sales calls. In addition, some of these e-mail campaigns suggest that there is a separate do-not-call ï¿½cell phone registry,ï¿½ which you must call to have your wireless phone number covered by the do-not-call rules. This information is wrong.

The do not call list is a problem in itself. Once you enter your phone number into the do not call database it is safe for five years.

Potentially upon the sixth year your number will be conveniently located on the same list that will now be used and distributed as a call list for tele-marketers.

An AKC operative happened to accidentally find this email written to MR. evil and thought it merited attention of the group:

Feb 21, 2008

Dear MR. evil,

We regret that we must terminate your association with our organization at this time.

Unfortunately, there are many other understudy candidates that meet our standards more precisely, and we have elected to fill your position with one of them.

The main reason we decided to do this is that you seem to have an inability to control the flipping of your wrists. Whether this is a medical situation or induced by personal issues is unknown. However, in your orientation package there were precise guidelines on the standard deviation for wristflipping that you unfortunately did not meet.

Excessive wristflipping in our organization is unacceptable because we present a humorous side of being gay to the public, rather than a more flaming style such as it seems you are prone to.

Shortly, you will receive in the mail a severance package. This will include a quart of KY Jelly, maps to various area truckstops, and a 1 month free pass to online gay porno. This is our way of showing you that we appreciate your efforts.

Please accept our sincere hopes for your success in the trucking industry's support sector. Many keyclowns have done well in this field, and we are certain that you are a fine candidate.

Sincerely,

The Village People

Hey Jude, don't smoke that crack
Go to rehab, and make it better
The minute you quit smokin' rock
You can begin to make it better

Hey Jude, don't be afraid
You were made to go out and do him
The minute you let him into your butt
Then you can start to be a drug slut

And anytime you feel butt pain, Hey Jude, Refrain, Don't carry the truckstop upon your warm lips
For well you know it's a fool, who just loves goo
By making his world a little limper...

NA NA NA NA NA....NA NA NA NA NA!!!!

Hey Jude, yer a keyclown
You have found men, now go and get them
Remember, to not break smelly farts,
Then you can start, to make more money

Truckers out and truckers in, hey Jude, begin You're waiting for someone to do cornhole
And don't you know it's just you, Hey Jude, you'll do
The trucker you need is at your hot lips

NA NA NA NA NA....NA NA NA NA NA!!!!

Hey Jude, don't smoke that crack
Go to rehab, and make it better
The minute you quit smokin' rock
You can begin to make it better, better, better, better....

NA NA NA NA NA....NA NA NA NA NA...hey Jude...

buildings, trees and heigth above ground. These are rather difficult things to calculate from a simple equation.

Hello James

..and is a jogunn 4 worth $500+? They are good sounding antennas but they stole that design from Gizmothcy. They major upgraded the construction of it though so that's worth something.

I'm on the fence as to which 4 element hybrid I want to buy. I like that quad loop 4 element from what's his name, except for all that wire.

He has mental health issues. Specifically a pathological obsession with policing CB'ers. No one cares about his crusade and he is blind to that fact. He only makes a fool of himself with his obsession.

Britney Spears has the same problem in that she too can't see how others perceive her. She is looked upon as a self obsessed low class that has no idea of what an idiot she is making of herself.

Dear MR. evil,

We regret that we must terminate your association with our organization at this time.

Unfortunately, there are many other understudy candidates that meet our standards more precisely, and we have elected to fill your position with one of them.

The main reason we decided to do this is that you seem to have an inability to control the flipping of your wrists. Whether this is a medical situation or induced by personal issues is unknown. However, in your orientation package there were precise guidelines on the standard deviation for wristflipping that you unfortunately did not meet.

Excessive wristflipping in our organization is unacceptable because we present a humorous side of being gay to the public, rather than a more flaming style such as it seems you are prone to.

Shortly, you will receive in the mail a severance package. This will include a quart of KY Jelly, maps to various area truckstops, and a 1 month free pass to online gay porno. This is our way of showing you that we appreciate your efforts.

Please accept our sincere hopes for your success in the trucking industry's support sector. Many keyclowns have done well in this field, and we are certain that you are a fine candidate.

Sincerely,

The Village People

Fifty bucks says N8WWM has a license on March 1, 2009. The proposal is that all wagers be put into a neutral paypal account and paid to the winner(s) equally on that date.

Let's see if any of you trash talkers will do this. Doubtful.

Dear MR. evil,

We regret that we must terminate your association with our organization at this time.

Unfortunately, there are many other understudy candidates that meet our standards more precisely, and we have elected to fill your position with one of them.

The main reason we decided to do this is that you seem to have an inability to control the flipping of your wrists. Whether this is a medical situation or induced by personal issues is unknown. However, in your orientation package there were precise guidelines on the standard deviation for wristflipping that you unfortunately did not meet.

Excessive wristflipping in our organization is unacceptable because we present a humorous side of being gay to the public, rather than a more
flaming style such as it seems you are prone to.

Shortly, you will receive in the mail a severance package. This will include a quart of KY Jelly, maps to various area truckstops, and a 1 month free pass to online gay porno. This is our way of showing you that we appreciate your efforts.

Please accept our sincere hopes for your success in the trucking industry's support sector. Many keyclowns have done well in this field, and we are certain that you are a fine candidate.

Sincerely,

The Village People

Hold on here. One simple question: Does the illegal activity that he is crusading against have any negative impact on legitimate users of the CB bands? I don't know this answer; I'm not a CBer. But if it does, I can see someone getting frustrated if they can't get it enforced by their local FCC and decides to take things into his own hands, as far as at least gathering evidence. I'm sure he'll turn what he's found in to the proper authorities.

But if this activity to which he objects does no harm, then he is mentally ill.

No, what makes him mentally ill is his obsession. His crusade could persons response.

He is obsessive and making a fool of himself. He is obviously mentally ill.

Considering that metal prices seems to be rising without control, better make a chioce soon. Especially if any antenna choice uses

From some of the pictures, it does appear that the Jogunn did solve a mechanical issue that the original 70's version of the Gizmotchy had.
I got around that problem with boom to elelment clamps that were improved over the original design. The square boom is kind of interesting also. I still think some of the specs are a bit questionalble. Though my Giz did have a fantastic knoll on either side. It was located about 120 degrees from the front on either side and not really at right angles to the boom. Still the beam worked fantastic for ground wave. Had the boom at 27 feet above gorund and it was just unbelievable.

I'd notify them. I just don't have any evidence that he is a convicted felon.

I'll type you up a complaint letter, with all the relevant citations.
Figured you might need me to do it so it has proper spelling and punctuation. I'll also include the proper place to send it to at the FCC, right down to the 9 digit zip code. Send it before the postage goes up in May.

Another suggestion: a petition. Get a bunch of hams to sign a petition saying how they are tired of me and send it to the FCC.

Watch your email, Mr. Caruso.

Illegal CB'ers (keyclowns) often operate on frequencies reserved for government services in the US and other countries. One example is that above 27.405 there are frequencies reserved for coast guard and air/sea rescue in Australia, NZ, etc.

Locally, the dirty nature of CB radios being fed to class C amplifiers and other garbage type emitters causes interference to communication on other CB channels.

Harmonics of these dirty transmissions often may reach the public service bands, impeding those communications.

At the neighborhood level these illegal high powered transmissions overwhelm the capability of many home entertainment appliances to supress them. A 4 watt CB radio won't generally do this but a 4 watt CB with a dirty amplifier after it often does so.

The plain fact is that CB radios, and their "export" cousins (CB's with power, mode and frequency capabilities not allowed by the FCC and smuggled into the USA illegally) are not held to the same standards of emission purity that other transmitters are. This is beacuse at the 4 watt level they do not "pollute" at a very high level. When amplified, you get the "garbage in - garbage out" syndrome. They become VERY dirty, and cause the problems mentioned above.

The reality is that keyclowns do not care about this problem or any other problem not relating to their own idea of what they should be allowed to do. They could get amateur radio licenses and be allowed up to 1500 watts of power output but they don't WANT a ham license. They WANT to operate like they do. No rules, no consideration, no clean signal, no common sense. That is the keyclown way.

Locally, the dirty nature of CB radios being fed to class C amplifiers and other garbage type emitters causes interference to communication on other CB channels.

Harmonics of these dirty transmissions often may reach the public service bands, impeding those communications.

At the neighborhood level these illegal high powered transmissions overwhelm the capability of many home entertainment appliances to supress them. A 4 watt CB radio won't generally do this but a 4 watt CB with a dirty amplifier after it often does so.

The plain fact is that CB radios, and their "export" cousins (CB's with power, mode and frequency capabilities not allowed by the FCC and smuggled into the USA illegally) are not held to the same standards of emission purity that other transmitters are. This is beacuse at the 4 watt level they do not "pollute" at a very high level. When amplified, you get the "garbage in - garbage out" syndrome. They become VERY dirty, and cause the problems mentioned above.

The reality is that keyclowns do not care about this problem or any other problem not relating to their own idea of what they should be allowed to do. They could get amateur radio licenses and be allowed up to 1500 watts of power output but they don't WANT a ham license. They WANT to operate like they do. No rules, no consideration, no clean signal, no common sense. That is the keyclown way.

never sold any illegal radio equipment in my life, assclown. Thats a base cb, UN MODIFIED. As for the mod info, if you were smart enough to even comprehend it, it puts the radio on 10 meters.

As for jamming a repeater, as discussed before...LONG before...that was a heated discussion on the machine in question. NO PERSON was accused of jamming anything. This is just another example of how you lie to make things fit your own weird frame.

by the way, you never answered my statements, just called me names and posted this garbage...is what I said true or false?

you, however, moparhoLICK, admit to the ultimate defiling of radios...running a Collins rig on CB.

I challenge you, moparhoLICK, tell us all what is in error in the statements below...you can't cuz it is all true.

Illegal CB'ers (keyclowns) often operate on frequencies reserved for government services in the US and other countries. One example is that above 27.405 there are frequencies reserved for coast guard and air/sea rescue in Australia, NZ, etc.

Locally, the dirty nature of CB radios being fed to class C amplifiers
and other garbage type emitters causes interference to communication
on other CB channels.

Harmonics of these dirty transmissions often may reach the public

Bottom Line: 1. Everything I said about keyclowns is true. 2. You can't stand it 3. Nothing you have ever done has stopped it. 4.
Nothing you ever do will stop it.
Trade media with your new lover, post anything you think of, call me anything you want. The bottom line is you are totally incapable of preventing the AKC from acting. Totally incapable. It has been demonstrated now for going on 9 years. You are a keyclown, you are too stupid to get it. We know. We grin.

The secret CB article is called "Complete, Updated, 10 meter amateur conversion for the uniden 858 chassis" That is exactly what it does, too.

Want a copy, queenie? Save the time and change out those CB crystals in your Collins gear. What an ass.

Okay, I just finished installing the radio in my truck and I am having problems. Came out of a pickup where the antenna was tuned perfectly (I checked it)

Put it in mine with a firestik 4' Antenna, New Mount, Base, Cable, etc. Wired it with a relay controlled by the key directly to the battery, Inline fuse. Ran the swr and tuned it to 1.2 on ch 1 and on ch 40.

Works OK most of the time, long transmit range, good performance. Reception is always good. However, sometimes when I press the talk button on the mic, the "TX" light comes on, but none of the 1,2,3,4 lights come on and I don't transmit anything. Usually it will do it 2-3 times then transmit like normal.

I'm at a loss here. I might try a spare Mic I have to see if it makes any difference.

Any suggestions would be appreciated.

OK. I thought this had hit rock bottom. Now they are comparing tits.

My problem with this was that, I didn't care if Debbie Clemens was the biggest bitch, and the biggest implants, or whatever. She was not a public figure, and should have never been brought into this. I was trying to be objective with respect to Rog-ah. But once he took the stand and brought his wife into this, it was all over.

In November 1999, real-life stress was playing havoc with my (Douglas Adair N8WWM) emotions and OCD. I had been off medication and out of therapy for years, and I needed a place where I could talk about personal issues. Searching under OCD and gay, I discovered the old BrainPhysics discussion board and decided to post. I thought I was joining a board full of gay people with OCD. Only ten minutes after I had started reading the most recent posts, however, I realized that something was wrong: The folks with gay fears were clearly not gay. It took another five minutes for me to figure out what HOCD was and why so many people had gay obsessions. "Well, duh!" I thought. "This is an OCD board. Of course they have false obsessions."

Before my own OCD was treated, I had suffered for years with obsessions about natural disasters, religion, my health, and being rejected. What I saw in the HOCD obsessions mirrored the anxiety, checking, illogical thinking, and broken record quality of everything I had experienced. HOCD felt real to its sufferers just as my own obsessions had felt real to me. Again, duh! OCD always feels real. If it did not, it would not be OCD. It plays with your mind, making you believe lies and doubt truth.

I would later learn that truly gay people may also get HOCD, but that they falsely fear that they are heterosexual. Bisexuals with HOCD have the false fear that they are attracted to only one sex, usually the one they are not currently involved with. These facts alone should help straight HOCD folks to see that they are indeed straight. HOCD is an illness, and who but a gay HOCD sufferer would fear being straight, the thing society prizes? Just as HOCD obsessing over being straight = gay in reality, HOCD obsessing over being gay = straight in reality. Straight folks with HOCD know deep down that they are not gay. But I am getting ahead of myself.

I turned 47 a week ago, and I have been out of the closet for almost seven years. In that time, I have helped other truly gay people come out of the closet. If I thought for a minute that even one of the straight HOCD sufferers on the board was gay, I would do the same for him or her. Yet, while I have done my best to help many on the board, I have helped no one come out of the closet.

Welcome aboard

I don't think truckers are like other hobbyist cbers. I am near Philly, and 19 is full of truckers. Gets quieter out in the country.

I am a hobbyist. When I talk to truckers, they hang the CB up when they leave the truck. Two different animals.

Wow, looking at that picture, I sure hope you have ALL the verifying information that I'll need about the person pictured in the auction. Per EBay's own TOS you will have to provide the actual information that you claim:

Listings not offering an item or service for sale are not permitted on eBay.
These types of listings include but are not limited to:

a.. Listings where the buyer cannot verify the existence of the item upon receipt of the item

b.. Listings with the apparent, primary purpose of expressing the seller's personal views

c.. Signposts - listings primarily meant to direct a user to a seller's store or other listings

d.. Want Ads - unless they are posted in the Want It Now Format

Violations of this policy may result in a range of actions, including:

a.. Listing or Want It Now post cancellation

b.. Limits on account privileges

c.. Account suspension

d.. Forfeit of eBay fees on cancelled listings

e.. Loss of PowerSeller status

And if a class "C" won't work than what class does?

Or will only a class "D" work for some dummies!

Do you know what a class "D" amp is?

Just a few questions and you can know for sure if you are a radio idiot!

1. Do you put 48 hour long noisemaker carriers on the busiest CB channel in your city because you are drunk and angry and wanna take it out on people who did nothing?

2. Do you get keyed up on and then hire the biggest idiot in the history of CB radio to find the source?

3. Are you such a bitch that you pick on women cuz you know that's all you can do?

4. Do you buy stolen property from people you know are crack addicted criminals?

5. Do you spray chemical fertilizer in a dog's face because you don't like the barking?

6. Do you point cameras and microphones at your neighbors because you are a paranoid jackoff?

7. Are you afraid someone will find your secret stash of Playgirl magazines?

8. Are you unable to spell many words in common useage?

9. Do you get drunk, key down your radio, and play a guitar with absolutely no talent whatsoever for hours on end?

10. When you do something wrong and get caught do you get mad at the person who caught you rather than yourself for being so stupid as to think you would never get nailed?

If you answered these questions with a "yes", you are an idiot. There is no cure, and you are damned sure not ham radio material.

Linear amplifiers which are added after a transmitter are usually class AB which means they are biased below cutoff but will draw current when activated. The class AB amplifiers have good linearity at RF frequencies. When amplifying an AM or SSB signal a linear amplifier must be used or the audio will be distorted. When amplifying FM, CW, RTTY, or digitally modulated RF signals a class C amplifier can be used and will give the greatest efficiency. Thus many amplifiers sold to use on VHF FM radios are not linear and can not be used for SSB VHF transmission.

A Class C amplifier is non-linear. It would cause a lot of AM in your FM.

Plate Modulated AM radio. The tank circuit turns the dirty pulses into luxurious sine waves. Beautiful sound when done correctly.

I don't see it listed here:
http://www.cbtricks.com/radios/connex/index.htm

I couldn't tell you because I don't use radios with a 40 channel selector knob that claim to be "10 meter" radios. I still think the FCC is wrong about calling 2510's and 2950's CB's.

Almost two years ago, the voters of AUK gave Mark Morgan the Golden Killfile award because his posts were so not worth reading.

http://www.club127.net/auk/search.php?search=morgan

Mark Morgan, alias "an old friend"

Golden Killfile, August 2006

In fact, they are so boring that Mark hasn't won an AUK award since, and rightfully so. That didn't stop his fanbois, who persisted in crossposting their responses to Mark into AUK so that Mark would follow up, thus exposing the object of their devotion to more attention from kookologists. They've also hijacked threads in AUK, fr0gged Mark, and crossposted them back into rec.radio.* groups. That the kookologists have consistently ignored their efforts didn't stop them.

Bois, I have news for you. Sometimes, persistently trying to get an unworthy candidate nominated will result in the presenters themselves getting nominated. That happened the first time Mark Morgan was presented, when the "Outer Filth Trio" of raap won three awards.

http://www.club127.net/auk/search.php?search=outer

The "Outer Filth" 'Trio'

George Pickett Memorial Trophy, August 2006
Special Ops Cody Memorial Purple Heart, August 2006
Order of the Holey Sockpuppet

I think it's about time for Mark's fanbois to get another award for their Jonah fishing.

For their bone-headed persistence, utterly boring and unimaginative presentation, and sheer fuckwittedness, I nominate Mark Morgan's Fanbois from rec.radio.*, who are, if not the "Outer Filth Trio" themselves, their direct heirs, for the Golden Killfile for their being "unworthy enough to be ignored by everyone on the face of the earth."

Linear amplification is not required for FM. The carrier is constant.

I'm thinking about buying a Yaesu FT-101E that has just been gone through, new finals and all. (those strange tubes) NOS case on it too, beautiful. No drift after warm-up.

I've heard it on the air, and it sounds -FAT- on SSB, the owner says the receive is golden too. Money back guarantee. I sold my ts-520 so I'm back in the market for a fine sounding tube transceiver.

My question is re-tubing the finals someday, I understand those are very rare now.

How much will that cost me in today dollars?

TIA

And most hams have enough sense not to want to be a keydowner.
Really, what fucktard wants to run all that power and spend all of those funds on altenators. batteries and amps, just to talk down the block aganst another fucktard on an old defunct ham radio band. Ever notice at the keydowns how all the old time keydowners look like walking death and are bald...that my friend is from long term RF exposure which destroys the cells in their bodies. Get a safer hobby

Isn't it amazing that us hams seem to get by with doing the same things that you CB'ers are doing, but because we happen to have a 'License' we don't have to worry? My QRO amp EASILY does 3000 watts, even though we're limited to 1500 watts PEP. And if you really get board, just see what the hams REALLY are doing at http://www.3950.net/or at http://www.3933.us/ or maybe http://www.wz5q.net/index/audiocrew.htm
Keep in mind that the Rochester Hamfest is just around the corner! Ya...you might key-up 30K in your Burb on the Bowl, but my 100 watts is workin' the WORLD with alot less effort on HF.

Move the jumper to unlock it... Should be VERY similar to this:
http://www.cbtricks.com/radios/cobra/148gtl_dx_plus/freq_mod.htm

I'm not sure if it's exactly the same, as the DXL is a newer model, but the 148FGTL DX+ is the same as the 4800DX.

The discussion here is amplification, not reception. The type of detector in whatever receiver you want to use has no bearing on the types of amplifiers that can be used to amplify an FM source.

I do not understand why you feel compared to depart from conventional types of amplifiers required for various modes. Class C is used for FM because of it's greater efficiency, typically in excess of 70%. Linearity is not required as the amplitude of the signal is not changed. Certainly, you could use AB1 or AB2, but efficiency will not be as great, will require more transistors or tubes, and a larger physical footprint.

Class C is defined as an anode conduction angle of less than 180 degrees. In Class C, the amplifying device is deliberately not operated linearly. Instead, it is operated as a switch in order to reduce resistance loss. The anode conduction angle in Class C operation is usually made as short as is possible. In effect, the tank circuit makes the RF output sine wave--like a bell that is struck at a constant rate by a hammer. This is similar to the principal behind the spark transmitter.

The efficiency of a typical Class C amplifier is high. When compared to a Class AB1 or Class AB2 amplifier operating at the same power input, a Class C amplifier will deliver a received signal increase of about 1db--in other words, 1/6 of 1 S-unit. However, significant trade-offs are required to achieve that 1/6 of 1 S-unit. As is the case with Class B operation, the distortion from Class C operation is so high that SSB operation is precluded. Only CW, FM or FSK operation is practical. The harmonic output level from a Class C amplifier is substantial. Extra filtering is usually needed to control harmonic radiation.

Usually when one copies the above they would reference the source instead of giving the impression that it was of their own authoring.

Ok I'll bite on this one, but this type of message is usually to intise someone to fly off the handle. But does lack a certain quality.

Most all the "Big Straps" are licensed hams. Most Hams now a days started with a CB radio. The Morse Code should have been out lawed when the telephone was invented, the sharp increase in ham licenses shows us this. And the bands haven't feel into any more disarray then there all ready where.

Most everyone enjoys the radio to have a good time, and meet new people and such. I have way more fun at a shoot out with all the big starpers than a hamfest. Usually have a great BBQ, home made wine, and you get to meet many great people. The engineering and what these guys put together is way more than some ham putting up a dipole antenna. The offer for one guys daughter to be married was an eye opener.

Ok I have to share this with everyone here. While at the TRW Swap Meet near the Los Angles Airport, I was looking at a table with some items I was interested in. Along comes a fat pudgy ham wanted to buy a vacuume tube for his whatever. The guy at the table says the price is 50 cents not 35 cents. Now please leave. The Ham guy insisted the price should be 35 cents, not 50 cents. So the guy at the table smashes the tube and tells the guy again to leave and to also take a bath. I was in tears!! Then the guy says to the ham pug, that he is a avid CB'er and that morse code was making him into a geek. Oh man the entertainment value.

The fine is generally about the same for using that QRO amp at its potential output on either band. The one thing is you have a bit more to loose, yor license.

So go ahead and pop off about how much power you can potentialy run.
When in reality you can only use 1500 W PEP legally. So waht is the advantage of owning amp that can do more than you can legally use?

Not really. While heat is an issue with power grid tubes, as long as you have sufficient air flow cooling and do not exceed their dissapation they are happy. The filaments have more to do with the life of tubes. After their emmisions fall off so does output power.

6JS6C, two in the final stage. Even if you convert the final stage to 6146B's you are still at a cost of $40 or more for a matched pair.

Hello CBC:

I am sorry to have to point this out on the Lords day, but your incisive negative replays are wrong as usual. I would suggest counting your blessings and cool down a little.

I am the one who wrote the sentence structure and wrong use of words, as you say. I went to the Los Angles City School System, in fact the same school that Cheech and Chong went to, before they got kicked out of there to. So its pretty hard to dough my kreedentials.

At work the money is where the results are, we have a secretary that do the spelling and right word stuff. I get a kick out of the old man (big boss) he will red line or correct a out going report to purposely insert wrong word usage to the main office, just to stir the suits up a little. Good man. funny

Kreedentials:
Rock n Roll fan radio enthusiasts
New left head gasket on 64 Buick
The kid got new high speed enternet, wow!
Got new Uniden BCT-15 scanner, got to read the instructions tho Got new big linear, but afraid the trailor floor will break open with it weight! might have it on e-bay here in a little

I have been taking on a couple of restoration projects. First trying old CBs.
Then hope to try Ham rigs. Do a lot of the old rigs use these tubes?

The "now what" is that they have a legal place to go and choose not to go there. As a result they are subject to being busted.

It is sorta like whining that street racing should be legal because you don't want to follow the rules that come with a real drag strip.

Hey Vinnie I have an old Swan Egineering SW-240 Single Side Band Xcvr you can have. Picked it up from a neighbors trash pile just before the rains came. Just pay postage and its yours.
Also have a Johnson Viking MultiBand (10, 15, 20, 40, 60, 80 & 160) meters but the fooker weighs like 80 lbs. Again yours for postage.

Will do. I might have to pick them up, or meet you. Postage would be expensive, but I am not worried about that. The weight of those things do not ship well. Some always get damaged. I could meet you somewhere in Staten Island or such, and would reimberse you for gas and tolls. But I want them both. I don't care of condition. But are they complete?

Email me direct Vinnie as I have an idea of where we can hook up.
The Swan has the original mic attached. Even has what appears to be brackets where the gent used it as a mobile. The Viking doesn't have the mic or power cord but you could figure those out. Its a restoration thing with these but I'm fairly sure they work.

I don't give a shit about mic or power cords, or even tubes. I was more concerned about knobs and things like that.

I talked to me co-worker who lives in Edison, NJ. He said he would be a relay, and pick up from you, and I pick up from him. We can arrange a meeting place like Staten Island Hospital area right near the Verrazano, or somewhere like that. How far are you from the Verrazano?

Weren't fuel prices so low for so long because of trucker strikes? Should truckers develop a "stealth strike" by taking 30 minutes to fuel up, delaying loads? Seriously, if you loose a month, or a quarter's worth of your income to rising fuel and inflation, why not strike if people cannot buy things? If every trucker took an extra 15 minutes to fuel up, would that send a signal?

Do you think foreign factory workers are going to be happy when their lines shut down due to port's being full? Should the local longshoremen join in?

Do you have any idea how much time it takes to pump 100 gallons of fuel? Between the act of getting fuel, and waiting in line for fuel, 30 minutes is very often a pretty fast fuel stop. There's a reason truck stops have massive parking lots after the fuel islands: Getting fuel is the last thing any trucker wants to do. They get fuel then stop for the night.

UPS and FEDEX run up the bill on oversized boxes, even if they don't weight much. Getting an IMAX was obscenely expensive thru the internet. I got one locally.

Right, it is an 18 foot boom and no its not in 3 pieces rather 1. I

I'm a bungling amateur at CB so please bear with me in trying to sort out a couple of antennas....
I'm messing about with a small handheld CB (a Maycom AH-27 thingy) and I've got two CB antennas - a trucker 80 and a sirio 4000. Both antennas were sold to me to use with a magnet base on a car roof. I decided to try them at home as a base antenna so I bought a ground plane kit - a simple square metal plate with four steel poles (about 2 meters long each) that bolt to it and radiate out - currently assembled on my bedroom floor as a temporary tryout.
Pictures here: http://www.zen73857.zen.co.uk/antenna/
I haven't had much success picking anything up with either antenna - I accept that that could be because hardly anyone uses CB these days.
So I tested the antennas with a small multimeter and what puzzles me is that with the trucker antenna there is no continuity between the pin and the screw mount section, but the sirio does show continuity between these two contact points. Which one is behaving correctly? I thought I should be using a ground plane with these two antennas but now I'm not sure. When I connect the CB handheld to the antenna assembly I do get a strong signal reading in the CB display with both antennas but all I hear on every channel is noise. Should I do be doing further modifications? Thanks for any pointers.

If by 'pin' you are referring to the center pin of the connector that goes to your radio, then I would expect there to be continuity between it and the metal part of the antenna.
If there is no continuity, it could be a fault in the black bit at it's base. Take the trucker antenna off the ground plane and check for continuity [or not] between the coil and the screw fitting in the black bit.

Wow again you are wrapped around the axle in a negative way. Maybe ya need to get out more often, you know see a movie, go out on a date, have some fun.

Yes great videos, the one guy on channel six was using a beam upgrade kit I sell thanks. Guys sounds great!

I didn't know they had the radio videos, thanks.

Me thinks now I need to make a few videos. Maybe a large cardboard box painted black with meters and large tuning knobs, turn indicator lights off my 66 Mustang, and a ahaa hooo gah horn, Some classic bitchen rock n roll as background music, and some not honey in the back ground. OH YEAH! The gears are turning thanks again CBC!

It is probably a series fed antenna like the K40 . This means for matching purposes a capacitor is connected between ground and radiator. No DC short.

>but the sirio does show continuity >between these two contact points. Which one is behaving correctly?

It is probably a shunt fed antenna. This means for matching purposes a coil is connected between ground and radiator. This will show a DC short.

thanks for your response: so this would mean both antennas are behaving correctly based on the way they were individually designed.
Should I be using a ground plane with these antennas or is there a better way to get a signal?

They require a ground plane to complete the circuit and decouple the antenna. If you are using these indoors good luck. Many factors come in to play that can absorb the signal.

If they are outside and free and clear of nearby conductors they should work fine. Not as good as a full size antenna but close enough.

Hello Steve:

I think poor ol CBC is one of those who never fit in, you know the guys who where never tall enough to get on the wild rides at the amazement park, had his lunch money taken from him ect. Probably has to get the car home on time so Mom can go to Church on Wed nights. Kind of a shame.

There is a "bitchen" CB Radio video out there that has the song "Simple Man" by Lynyard Skynyrd, I can't find it again, darn!

Hello Jay

Yeah that sounds like a fair description of CB corey, always on the outside looking in wondering why no one pays any attention to him.

Simple man by who was it, Ricky Van Shelton? was good too. There's a few simple man renditions in the air now, but Skynard prolly started it all.

Thanks for the wave, Jay. Have a good weekend, maybe catch you in the air.

I have a Boomer Deluxe 500 watt base amp that I plan on bringing to the Rochester hamfest to sell. Besides the obvious, what other bands will this amp work on? I'm thinkin' maybe 10, 12, 17, and 15 with a tuner. I've only used it on 11 meters in the past, before I became a ham.

If you know what y ou are dong the conversion can be done. Today there are not a lot of amature operators well schooled in tube theory. The biggest issue is matching filament votages and currents. Some transcievers and transmitters will put the final fillaments in series with other tubes. Drake dows this with their TR4 and T4X units. I had to strap a large wattage resistor over the filaments to balance current.

I did a conversion on a Drake T4X to 6146Bs and the biggest issue I had was keeping the final stage nuetralized on 10M. I ended up regulating the screen voltage down to about 150VDC from the 250VDC the 6JB6s ran at. That helped a bunch. The drop in output was not a major concern. Still was able to get 80W on 10M. The HA10 really only needs about 50 W drive. Also modified the T4X so that I could bypass the finals and drive an NCL2000. Now that is a nice amp.

Even though they have "broadband matching transformers", gain will change greatly with frequency because it's tuned for 27 MHz. Why do you think ham amps have band settings. I wouldn't use it for anything but 10 & 12 unless you put a filter for each band you intend to use it on. You'll have to increase the ferrite on the BB xformers to use it on lower freqs.

8.6 feet for 27.185 MHz.

Yeah ok I will be keeping an ear open on 27.385 for the local CB traffic, and 28.385 for the local ham traffic and hopefully some DX stations may come rolling in.

According to the FCC, more people use CBs today than ever before. My guess is it has to do more with the golden rule of antenna placement: Proximity to other users, and elevation. If you're pretty much on the ground at low elevation, odds are you're not going to hear much.

UPS and FEDEX plain will not accept packages with any dimension over 7 feet, end of story. Being an owner-operator in direct competition with them, I end up getting a lot of business they turn down.

What shipping group is that? I have had Fedex ship 108 inch long boxes, Yeah thanks go to CBC he is the one that brought up the CB radio videos. I have been watching the CB and Ham radio, and sniper videos (and having a ball), there is even a video showing the Interceptor 10K Antenna, that I didn't even know about.

Since the kid hooked me up to physco nut cake incredo fastest maxiumest hall ass high speed cable, the videos are great to watch and see.

Now I have to go buy a video camera, and video all the goings on.

Oh no, not the ground-plane size again... run for cover :~)

The ground-plane kits come ready made, designed for UK use. Simply bolt them together, no measuring or cutting required.

27.185 MHz does not usually come into any calculations on this side of the pond.
UK only band, centre is 27.79625. UK CH 20 is 27.79125.
Dual band, centre is 27.478125. Right between the bands.

Regards,
Peter.

Are you sure the ground-plane kit is steel? The ones in the UK shops use aluminium tubing for the radials. Cheap and simple to work with, but effective enough.

Distance will depend upon several factors, including height and obstructions.
The bedroom floor is not the ideal place. You need it as high and as clear of obstructions as possible. Any hills around you will block off signal.

> I haven't had much success picking anything up with either antenna - I

Here in the UK, CB use is patchy. Some areas may have nobody using CB right now.
If you are near a motorway, you should hear some passing truckers.

The readings you are getting may be quite normal for those antennas. Most UK mobile antennas will read open circuit, but some will read as if short-circuit.

It may also be worth checking your coax with that meter. Check for continuity on inner and outer, but none between the two. It is easy for a single strand of braid wire to short out the coax.

> Should I be using a ground plane with these antennas or is there a > better way to get a signal?

Yes, you MUST use a ground plane when using a mobile antenna as a base antenna.
Yes, there is a better way... a proper base antenna fixed up on the roof. This would improve the range, but there are no guarantees that there will be anyone else using CB within that range.

If you don't want to risk wasting money, only to find nobody else about, you could maye your own antenna from wire. Details on my site (below) and possibly also on sites all over the Web.

Another option is talk one or two friends or relatives into buying CBs.
If you give an indication of which part of the UK you are in, someone on this group may be in your area and able to give you a shout or help you in some other way.

For more about CB within the UK, check out some sites...
I have a site at:

I heard a call for a communications tower falling over and one ham reported his vertical 2 meter antenna was now horizontal. Another mentioned his support tree for his inverted vee lost it's top and now looked like an inverted dubya!

Get a I10-K and put it up in a taller, stronger tree.

They shitty part was I had put in a concrete base which O was moving the antenna to as soon as the weather breaks. You're talking a couple weeks. It won't be near trees.

(just re-aligned) People say it sounds large with that electrovoice 664 mic. That rig was always known for good audio.

Technically... broadband amps like that are supposed to work across a very wide bandwidth... perhaps 2-30MHz. However, a thrown-together bootleg amp like that has not had the benefit of careful broadband matching... and therefore most likely doesn't have the gain flattness across that wide a bandwidth. You would have to try it out on the bands you mention... and find out how well they did on that particular unit.

THOMAS - yes, that "Thomas".

It appears he named himself after the organ we've had in our living room since the 1970s.

He makes himself out to be some huge "post-revolutionary" cult member but it appears to me that he's only got a few women and a few closet cases following his "light".

I would estimate that only about ten people have fallen for his shit - namely the weakest ones who need protection from the more violent and street-wise members of the community.

This faction is passive-aggressive and into poisoning and medical abuses and stuff.....so watch out.

I may also remind cult member Ginger that trespassing and stealing people's keys and making copies of them is ILLEGAL, and that we are not in any criminal cult, we are not drug dealers or white supremacists or anything illegal or illegitimate, so I think you want to end the references to our house and trespassing.

Your creepy puritanical cult members (closet perverts a whole lot of them.... and I DO MEAN CLOSET) have done a good job of destroying the "evidence" so that the picture is more pleasing to them.

Now the picture is much clearer about the survivors: that they just don't realize how WRONG they are.

These morons have done a really good job of helping the extreme right destroy itself. I wonder if they realize that yet.....that what they are doing is essentially making this country safer for multiculturalism and tolerance.

I don't know who Ginger and her little boyfriend T think they are attacking and abusing.....but the lady is so dumb, she doesn't know history and she just steals from people and abuses and trespasses without any thought to the consequences.

I'm not going to be talked down to by some utterly bimbo-ish white supremacist little whore who thought it a good idea to get rid of someone about whom she falsely claimed was an "underling" or "employee".

That employee has a college degree, she didn't die either and she does not appreciate the "cleaning services" ordered by these cult zombie racists.

This little whore idiot does not realize that sometimes people take lower paying jobs so that they can keep their eye on the racism situation.....not because they are "cheap" or failures.

I cannot believe how idiotic these blond Kentucky Fried Chickenheads are.

They conduct their affairs as if there are the deserving and the undeserving and the dumbest thing ever is that they just go about their criminal business (it ain't blackmail if you're doing it, Ted - it's called EXTORTION).

When violent people trespass and spy and steal information about you, it's not called blackmail, it's called EXTORTION. Especially when this surveillance activity has been accompanied by violence. I was a victim of violence, therefore it is utterly idiotic to continue playing these games with me and my FEDERAL family.

Since violence is in the mix and trespassing is involved, the correct term Ted, you little bitch, is EXTORTION.

Ted, you've been playing this game around here for about eight or nine years now. You had an obsession with my brother for years and you just listen in on people or gather "information" and that is not a really smart thing to do unless you match the person with whatever teeny, tiny crap you've gotten.

I've sat here for about a year and have observed your idiotic interpretations of my brother (VERY AMUSING) and my father and even my mother and......don't you guys feel humiliated by all of this REALLY BAD PLAY ACTING?

You're in your forties and you don't realize that you can't really know a person unless YOU GET TO KNOW THEM.....and you think you can continue this violent charade.

Trespassing is illegal, Ginger, and in your case, you are violating my civil rights.

I'll give you 3 reasons:

1. We are in another Vietnam
2. Gas is over $3 per gallon
3. The dollar isn't worth shit anymore on the foreign markets.

Yeah, Bush really did a hell of a job.

Right. The kit should keep you entertained for a while. The gent you picked them up from was curios about the tubes in the radio's as he is building amps for his music hobby. I have several other tubes I want to sell and if they don't you are more than welcome to them. Let me know what you think of the radio's you just got.

The Swan face is superb. The case needs painting. I typically recap and tube. The Viking is in fair to good. That is actually great for a rig that old. The rust spot will be the biggest problem. If I can't do anything about them, I can try and get a new face. But the fact the unit looks complete and undamaged if half the work. I thank you greatly.

I will let you know which tubes they are. I have to open them up. I will probably clean them in a couple weeks, before I start replacing components.

I tried getting info on the year the Viking was made but came up empty.
I didn't even notice the rust on it.
Since the older amateurs who ran those rigs are slowly passing on I'm sure there will be loads more of them appearing.

1523. CB radio mods

Hello All:

I have a good friend that needs his cb radio modified, reducing the receivers sensitivity and decreasing the receivers IF bandwidth.

This is for a trucker that drives all over the country. He says that the radio picks up too much bleed over from near by trucks on different channels.

I am thinking of installing a Lou Franklin Channel Guard in the receiver IF strip. The neat thing here is that some techs will vary the 12 volt input voltage to the amplifier transistor on the Channel guard Board as kind of a RF Gain.

http://www.cbcintl.com/cgfilter.htm

This may not be the all time fix but sure should improve the bleed over somewhat.

Anyone ever do this mod?

Thanks for all the off the group assistance. We have now determined how much one of these Pioneer tape decks costs.
There's a dealer who may be selling one at the Toledo hamfest tomorrow. Hurry though, the dealer won't be there very long, as he will have to go abruptly.

Last count 2 more amateurs in the Toledo area have submitted comment as to their feelings regarding keyclowns being awarded ham licenses. The FCC says that any letters of comment about individuals will stay in their permanent record, so as to accurately reflect the extenuating circumstances pertaining to the decision whether or not to grant.

KEYCLOWNS: You won't ever have a ham license if we bust you. AKC goes by the numbers with the FCC, something you retarded little turds can't do because you are stupid.

Act up, talk junk, that's expected. We understand keyclowns, we know this is your outlet. Poor babies, can't be hams because you keyclowned...We bet you think that's not your fault, too.

Your posting of the only negatives the seller ever had out of over 250 shows how desparate you are to find something to exploit. How laughable, how lame. Of course, anyone posting under the name of a known gay person wouldn't be expected to have a lick of sense. Maybe a lick or 500 of something else, but never sense.

That's OK, but why didn't you post replies? Answer: You can't handle the truth.

In any case, I bet you need some dog clippers too...I KNOW Sgt. Carter, your bf, must have complained at least once about it.

By the way, watching how you foolishly dance to the AKC melody just shows again how well we control your output. Thanks for playing.

If you come up with something creative maybe we can exchange views again, but AKC policy is to limit the number of replies to moronic assclowns who can't be creative. You are still owned by us, so you can take consolation in that. Sorry.

AWWWWWWWW......poor marqueer!
guess that multiple choice give away extra is just another example of marqueer being a victim of the mean old amateur radio community.

maybe the test should be further dumbed down so that even the most simple minded (such as marqueer) can play radio with the big boys! or does marqueer really want to play with the big boys on the radio?

You talk as in "second person" when truth is that it is you. Did you have positive, sure, but you did change your eBay name to which had even more negatives than currently.

Definition of AKC:

The American Kennel Club (or AKC) is a registry of purebred dog pedigrees in the United States. Beyond maintaining its pedigree registry, this kennel club also promotes events for purebred dogs, including the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show, an annual event which predates the official forming of the AKC, and the AKC/Eukanuba National Championship. The AKC is not part of the International Canine Organisation, F�d�ration Cynologique Internationale, as most other countries' kennel clubs are.

See above on what the AKC stands for and maybe you might change your views (considering you're into bestiality).

Well I'm not a dog, I don't live in a fantasy world, I don't owe back taxes or child support, I have never nor intend to have a court ordered psychiatric evaluation and ordered to seek it, my current or previous lady friends have never been convicted of any criminal activates, I don't live in a section 8 housing, I own my home and paid it in full 8 years ago, I don't obsess over little things like you do.
So if anything should be said, it's sorry about you.....

The absolute biggest hoot about this stuff is that while it does not in any way help you get rid of the Anti-Keyclowns (AKC), it exposes your utter frustration with us. You HAVE to lash out like this because you are confounded at every turn in your pathetic attempts to get rid of us. Nothing you can ever say or do, lie or truth, has not been ssaid before. You can only repeat yourselves in sad mechanical lockstep while the AKC hammers away at keyclownism.

There is no way you can do anything, but bless you for trying...it makes our days to watch you jibber jabber aimlessly while we give you one gastric complaint after another with our takedowns of the keyclown mentality. The very fact that you do jibber jabber so much is because you can't take it, and squirm to try to deflect the mallet as it comes down.

So, sissy trying to hide behind nyms, here is the question: When, will you be actually doing something about us anti-keyclowns? You already know the answer is never, because you keyclowns have absolutely no ability to do so. Never have and never will.

Kettle/pot. I tell you what Mark, you stop responding, I'll stop responding to all of his attacks. As you like to say, "I have the right to respond to my attackers" Maybe not in that good of English, but you try.

You've gotta be kiddin' me.'

No, would you like to give it a try?'

He told the guy the whole terrible story about how he got there.

When he finished telling his story, the other guy shook his head in sympathy, walked around behind him, kissed him gently behind the ear and said, 'This just ain't gonna be your day, cupcake...'

What are you talking about?? He has been attacking me and others for months, making claims about sexuality, abuse, etc etc. You have stated number of times that you have the right to respond to attacks, now you say I can't do the same thing you do?
And you call other people hypocrites, when you are the worst hypocritical troll on the net.

Ok, I'm not stupid, but maybe you can make the rest of us privey to what you see:

While walking through Golden Gate Park in San Francisco, a man came upon another man hugging a tree with his ear firmly against the tree.

I don't see anything about rape here

Seeing this he inquired, 'Just out of curiosity, what the heck are you doing?'

I'm listening to the music of the tree,' the other man replied.

You've gotta be kiddin' me.'

No, would you like to give it a try?'

Understandably curious, the man says, 'Well, OK...' So he wrapped his arms around the tree and pressed his ear up against it.

Same thing, don't see a damn thing about rape.

With this, the other guy slapped a pair of handcuffs on him, took his wallet, jewelry, car keys, then stripped him naked and left.

Again, nothing about rape, got robbed, but nothing about rape.

Two hours later another nature lover strolled by, saw this guy handcuffed to the tree stark naked, and asked, 'What the heck happened to you?'

I see nature lover, does that mean he's a rapist??

He told the guy the whole terrible story about how he got there.

When he finished telling his story, the other guy shook his head in sympathy, walked around behind him, kissed him gently behind the ear and said, 'This just ain't gonna be your day, cupcake...'

OK, again nothing about "Squeal like pig, or watch out son here it comes or anything about rape.

Yawn

"that is becuase you are a stupid wannabe marine"

Ok, I'm not stupid, but maybe you can make the rest of us privy to what you see:

While walking through Golden Gate Park in San Francisco, a man came upon another man hugging a tree with his ear firmly against the tree.

I don't see anything about rape here

Seeing this he inquired, 'Just out of curiosity, what the heck are you doing?'

I'm listening to the music of the tree,' the other man replied.

You've gotta be kiddin' me.'

No, would you like to give it a try?'

Understandably curious, the man says, 'Well, OK...' So he wrapped his arms around the tree and pressed his ear up against it.

Same thing, don't see a damn thing about rape.

With this, the other guy slapped a pair of handcuffs on him, took his wallet, jewelry, car keys, then stripped him naked and left.

Again, nothing about rape, got robbed, but nothing about rape.

Two hours later another nature lover strolled by, saw this guy handcuffed to the tree stark naked, and asked, 'What the heck happened to you?'

I see nature lover, does that mean he's a rapist??

He told the guy the whole terrible story about how he got there.

OK, again nothing about "Squeal like pig, or watch out son here it comes or anything about rape.

I still think this was one of the best that was posted recently...

Sam was traveling through Canada on vacation when he lost his wallet and all of his identification. He cut the trip short and was stopped by a U.S. Customs Agent at the border.

Agent: "May I see your identification, please?"

Sam replied: "I'm sorry, but I lost my wallet."

Agent: "Sure buddy, I hear that every day. No ID, no crossing the border ."

Sam: "But I can prove that I'm an American! I have a tattoo of Ronald Reagan
on one butt cheek and a tattoo of George Bush on the other."

Agent: "This I gotta see." With that, Sam dropped his pants and bent over in front of the agent.

Agent: "By golly you're right, go on home to Chassell."

Sam said: "Thanks, but what makes you think I'm from Chassell?"

Agent: "I recognized the picture of Mark Morgan in the middle."

The truth is marqueer is much more scared of the RRCB folks than AUK.
AUK is more silly than harmful, but RRCB tears marqueer a new asshole every time he posts there.

Sam bought a new truck last week, but then returned to the dealer the next day because he couldn't get the radio to work.

The salesman explained that the radio was voice activated. 'Nelson, the salesman said to the radio.

The Radio replied, 'Ricky or Willie?'

'Willie,' he continued and 'On The Road Again' came from the speakers. Then he said,

'Ray Charles' and in an instant 'Georgia On My Mind' replaced Willie Nelson.

Sam drove away happy, and for the next few days, every time he'd say, 'Beethoven,'

He'd get beautiful classical music, and when he said, 'Beatles,' he'd get one of their awesome songs.

Yesterday, a couple ran a red light and nearly creamed his new truck, but he swerved in time to avoid them.

'Ass Holes!' he yelled.

Immediately the French National Anthem began to play, sung by Jane Fonda and Barbara Streisand, backed up by Michael Moore and The Dixie Chicks, with John Kerry on guitar, Al Gore on drums, Dan Rather on harmonica, Nancy Pelosi on tambourine, Harry Reid on spoons, Bill Clinton on sax, and Ted Kennedy on scotch.

1676. Amp Purchase?

I was wondering if I could get a little help on an amp purchase or other modifications that would help in my tranmit and receive distance. I'll start off by mentioning that I live in the country with little to no neighbors.

I have a barefoot Galaxy DX55V, that I've brought into the house and hooked up to a Pyramid PS-14KX power supply with a Solarcon A99 mounted at approximately 25', running Tramflex RG-8/x coax at a length of 50', and an Astatic 636L mic.

It appears that with my current setup, I can hear traffic approximately 12-15 miles away with static - but they cannot hear me. I was looking for someway to clear that up and extend my range so that I could be heard and since there are geography obstructions in between (fairly good size hills), I first started looking at an amp. I first thought of an RMI KL-300, but was really unsure as to what choices were available due to what the 14KX would drive.

It has also been mentioned that I should raise the antenna to 35', which I'm all for - I just don't have anything available to attach it to at the time.

Are there any suggestions? Should I forego any amp purchase and focus on raising my antenna? If I should think of buying an amp, is the RMI KL series amps worth considering or should I steer towards a Fat Boy, Palomar, ALA, etc...

Thanks a lot for any assistance that you can give.

Happy Easter!

A sheel account? What is that?
Did you sign up over somebody else's call sign?
You can't get an account at QRZ unless your call sign is verified.

1679. Poor Mark, KB9RQZ

He has been run off QRZ.com twice, this last time permanently. Banned because of his false accusations aimed toward Dan Jeswald, W4NTI.

He caused the Administrator of the Nim Board to shut the site down because he, Mark, ruined it for others.

Mark lost his Tera News account because of his hundreds upon hundreds of floods to this newsgroup and others, and is now relegated to using several nyms through Google Groups. (thank you, DeLorean)

Mark has been banned from other accounts as well. To this day he simply does not get it!

He dirties up each and every group he has ever used and yet persists in claiming that he is a "victum" who is only trying to defend what he calls his "good name".

It is no small wonder that KB9RQZ was awarded the Kook Of The Year award. This is quite the accomplishment for a no-code General.

And now, believe it or not, the Kook Of The Year as actually been elected as president of his local Ham club, CCRAA. Copper County Radio Amateur Association in Michigan.

This is quite the accomplishment for a Kook like Mark, though it speaks poorly for the club members who elected him.

Do a Google search for KB9RQZ and form your own opinions.

Don't take my word for it.

And while you are at it, check out http://www.ccraa.blogspot.com/and look at the links to Mark's many, meandering blogs.
His blogs alone are a prime example of how imbalanced he is.

1] Make sure that your current antenna has a good ground.

2] Attach as many ground radials as you can.

3] See if you can barrow a antenna analyzer to check the SWR of your antenna system.

FDA Warns of Salmonella Risk with Cantaloupes from Agropecuaria Montelibano
The agency detains products from the Honduran manufacturer
The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has issued an import alert regarding entry of cantaloupe from Agropecuaria Montelibano, a Honduran grower and packer, because, based on current information, fruit from this company appears to be associated with a Salmonella Litchfield outbreak in the United States and Canada. The import alert advises FDA field offices that all cantaloupes shipped to the United States by this company are to be detained.

In addition, the FDA has contacted importers about this action and is advising U.S. grocers, food service operators, and produce processors to remove from their stock any cantaloupes from this company. The FDA also advises consumers who have recently bought cantaloupes to check with the place of purchase to determine if the fruit came from this specific grower and packer. If so, consumers should throw away the cantaloupes.

To date, the FDA has received reports of 50 illnesses in 16 states and nine illnesses in Canada linked to the consumption of cantaloupes. No deaths have been reported; however, 14 people have been hospitalized. The states are Arizona, California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Washington, and Wisconsin.

The FDA is taking this preventive measure while the agency continues to investigate this outbreak in cooperation with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and state partners. Such intervention is a key component of FDA's Food Protection Plan.

Symptoms of foodborne Salmonella infection include nausea, vomiting, fever, diarrhea, and abdominal cramps. In persons with poor health or weakened immune systems, Salmonella can invade the bloodstream and cause life-threatening infections. Individuals who have recently eaten cantaloupe and experienced any of these symptoms should contact their health care professional.

The FDA recommends that consumers take the following steps to reduce the risk of contracting Salmonella or other foodborne illnesses from cantaloupes:

a.. Purchase cantaloupes that are not bruised or damaged. If buying fresh-cut cantaloupe, be sure it is refrigerated or surrounded by ice.

b.. After purchase, refrigerate cantaloupes promptly.

c.. Wash hands with hot, soapy water before and after handling fresh cantaloupes.

d.. Scrub whole cantaloupes by using a clean produce brush and cool tap water immediately before eating. Don't use soap or detergents.

e.. Use clean cutting surfaces and utensils when cutting cantaloupes. Wash cutting boards, countertops, dishes, and utensils with hot water and soap between the preparation of raw meat, poultry, or seafood and the preparation of cantaloupe.

f.. If there happens to be a bruised or damaged area on a cantaloupe, cut away those parts before eating it.

g.. Leftover cut cantaloupe should be discarded if left at room temperature for more than two hours.

h.. Use a cooler with ice or use ice gel packs when transporting or storing cantaloupes outdoors.

I guess I wasn't aware that I needed to ground the A99 all that much, if any. I do have a single ground rod attached to tha mast that the antenna's attached to.

I own an SWR meter, and it is currently running steadily around 1.5

What is wrong with 1.5? It's prefectly fine, and losses from it are negiglible.

This won't effect SWR.

Agreed. I use Davis Bury-flex. If you are not running underground, 9913 or LMR400 is good.

I think he has tuning rings for SWR. But 1.5 is still very good.

Thank you both (Channel Cop & Vinnie)!

I didn't really think that an SWR of 1.5 was all that bad either.

But to answer the question about Coax; I'm running Tramflex RG-8/x at a length of 50' - it's not underground...it's more under trailer :-)

I've heard that the RG-8/x is not the best but only less than .5 db worse than the LMR400. If it is a great benefit to replace it, then I will. The only reasone I'd rather not jump to it, is that I just purchased it 2 wks ago at about $0.80 / ft, and didn't want to shell out more money so quickly if I wouldn't see a dramatic difference. It came from a CB Shop, who custom made it to my requested length. I also purchased the A99 from them at the same time, and they said that I didn't need to worry about grounding it or adjusting it. I told them that I was mounting it on a 1½" dia pipe about 25' high, and the only thing that they said was they would perfer that I mounted it higher - around 35'.

I was listening to it this afternoon, and it appears that I can hear somewhat acceptable (approximately 15 miles away) - but they can't hear me. That's what made me think that I needed something to boost my transmit. Would raising my antenna an additional 10' help that much?

Thanks again for both of your help.

if any. I do have a single ground rod attached to tha mast that the

Thanks for you response.

1] You really want to try and get your SWR down to around 1.2:1

2] What is the length of your current coax?

3] You may want to try a higher quality coax.

4] You should check you coax connectors: are they old - you might want to change them, but if you change them and they are the same age as the coax, then change the coax it is cheaper. If the coax comes with the connectors installed, then try to get the TEFLON connectors as they last longer and are of higher quality.

5] Can you adjust the length of your antenna? If you can by loosening a clamp, be sure to coat it with some RTV (u can get the RTV in any hardware store) when you have finished adjusting it, as this will give your antenna protection from the weather. Also, any coax connectors at the base of the antenna should be covered with Coax-Seal (www.coaxseal.com/).

6] As far as the ground radials, google "ground radials" - there are a number of sites with information on that subject.

I hope this helps you, as replacing either the antenna or the feed line is a lot cheaper than adding a high price amp!

I know of no valid reason they'd put CH on a capacitor value...
Are you sure the CH isn't HC... HC is a type of xtal package? Could they be implying that the xtal involved requires a load capacitance of

The submarine observes the target blowing a foghorn and ballyhooing about. It needs no blathering and needs no announcement. The submarine speaks with a torpedo.

The submarine bides it's time, waiting for the moment of best opportunity. Silent, stealthy attack and undetected withdrawl are the submarine's stock in trade. Doom on the target is the submarine's slogan.

You want paper copies of that lie? I have some, just let me know.
thats the kind of shit that happens when a greedy family member steals from an inheritence and gets caught. It's called revenge. In this case it didn't work.

The only reason I even say anything in defense is that you, being an idiot, did not have the whole story. There's a civil case in progress that is gonna be a fun read.

My situation being a bullshit deal, I must say that was NOT the case with 2 other women we know about and a certain nymboi-queen that you have had gay love with, was it?

Anyway, hope your Easter was happy. Knowing you it was probably spent looking up a rabbit's ass for eggs.

Subject: Obama a no show at meetings

For those of you out of the Washington, DC area and don't get the Post, this was a front page article. What surprised me was that they'd actually print it and blimish their fair-haired candiates. Those of you that get the Post, you might have skipped over it.

Shailagh Murray and Jonathan Weisman Washington Post Staff Writers

After weeks of arduous negotiations, on April 6, 2006, a bipartisan group of senators burst out of the "President's Room," just off the Senate chamber, with a deal on new immigration policy.

As the half-dozen senators -- including John McCain (R-Ariz.) and Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) -- headed to announce their plan, they met Sen. Barack Obama (D-Ill.), who made a request common when Capitol Hill news conferences are in the offing: "Hey, guys, can I come along?" And when Obama went before the microphones, he was generous with his list of senators to congratulate -- a list that included himself.

"I want to cite Lindsey Graham, Sam Brownback, Mel Martinez, Ken Salazar, myself, Dick Durbin, Joe Lieberman . . . who've actually had to wake up early to try to hammer this stuff out," he said.

To Senate staff members, who had been arriving for 7 a.m. negotiating sessions for weeks, it was a galling moment. Those morning sessions had attracted just three to four senators a side, Sen. Arlen Specter (R-Pa.) recalled, each deeply involved in the issue. Obama was not one of them. But in a presidential contest involving three sitting senators, embellishment of legislative records may be an inevitability, Specter said with a shrug.

Unlike governors, business leaders or vice presidents, senators -- the last to win the presidency was John F. Kennedy in 1960 -- are not executives. They cannot be held to account for the state of their states, their companies or their administrations. What they do have is the mark they leave on the nation's laws -- and in Obama's brief three-year tenure, as well as Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton's seven-year hitch, those marks are far from indelible.

"It's not an unusual matter for senators to take a little extra credit," Specter said.

Both Obama and Clinton have tried to make the most of it, and Clinton has attempted to bolster her Senate r&#65533;sum&#65533; with her less-than-transparent track record as first lady. The release Wednesday of more than 11,000 pages of documents from Clinton's years in the White House sent reporters and political opponents scrambling for evidence that might contradict her lofty assessment of her performance in those years.

The Obama campaign pounced on the documents, using them to argue that the senator from New York had understated her role in securing the passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement and overstated her roles in foreign policy decisions and passage of the Family and Medical Leave Act early in her husband's administration.

With colleagues in Congress quick to claim credit where it is due, word moves quickly when undue credit is claimed.

"If it happens once or twice, you let it go," said Sen. Christopher J. Dodd (D-Conn.), an Obama supporter. "If it becomes the mantra, then you go, 'Wait a minute.' "

Immigration is a case in point for Obama, but not the only one. In 2007, after the first comprehensive immigration bill had died, the senators were back at it, and again, Obama was notably absent, staffers and senators said. At one meeting, three key negotiators recalled, he entered late and raised a number of questions about the bill's employment verification system. Kennedy and Specter both rebuked him, saying that the issue had already been resolved and that he was coming late to the discussion. Kennedy dressed him down, according to witnesses, and Obama left shortly thereafter.

"Senator Obama came in late, brought up issues that had been hashed and rehashed," Specter recalled. "He didn't stay long."

Both Obama And Clinton Embellish Their Roles
Just this week, as the financial markets were roiling in the wake of the Bear Stearns collapse, Obama made another claim that was greeted with disbelief in some corners of Capitol Hill. On March 13, Dodd, the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, and Rep. Barney Frank (D-Mass.), chairman of the House Financial Services Committee, unveiled legislative proposals to allow the Federal Housing Administration to guarantee new loans from banks willing to help homeowners in or approaching foreclosure. Obama and Clinton were in Washington for a day-long round of budget voting, but neither appeared at the housing news conference.

Yet Obama on Monday appeared to seek top billing on Dodd's proposal.

"At this moment, we must come together and act to address the housing crisis that set this downturn in motion and continues to eat away at the public's confidence in the market," Obama said. "We should pass the legislation I put forward with my colleague Chris Dodd to create meaningful incentives for lenders to buy or refinance existing mortgages so that Americans facing foreclosure can keep their homes."

Dodd did say that Obama supported the bill, as does Clinton. But he could not offer pride of authorship to the candidate he wants to see in the White House next year.

"I've talked to him about it at some length," Dodd said. "When Senator Obama was there for that full day of voting, we had long conversations about it. He had excellent questions and decided to support it."

Clinton also has her share of colleagues only too willing scrutinize her claims. Her campaign Web site describes Clinton's "successful effort to create" the popular State Children's Health Insurance Program during her husband's tenure in the White House, and she has placed herself in the middle of major international events, including the Northern Ireland peace process and the Balkan conflict.

But prominent Democratic senators, Irish historians and even Sinbad the comedian, who accompanied Clinton to Kosovo, are challenging some of her assertions.

During months of SCHIP negotiations in 1997, her name rarely surfaced in news accounts. Clinton never testified before Congress or held a news conference on the bill. When Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (Utah), the lead GOP negotiator of the children's health bill, heard reports that Clinton was depicting herself as SCHIP's main advocate, "I had to blink a few times," he said. Hatch said he doesn't recall a single conversation with Clinton about SCHIP, even a mention of her name. "If she was involved, I didn't know about it," he said.

"You know how she says, 'I started SCHIP'? Well, so did I," joked Sen. John D. Rockefeller IV (D-W.Va.), one of the Democrats who pushed the bill across the finish line along with Kennedy. Both have endorsed Obama.

Some Clinton insiders also are uncomfortable with some of her assertions. "I don't really like the way she talks about her role in SCHIP," conceded one former Clinton administration official, who supports the first lady's candidacy, speaking on the condition of anonymity in order to express his views candidly. "She doesn't say it right. What she should say is 'I was the driving force in the administration.' That's pretty big, and it's all true."

Obama has left discussion of SCHIP authorship to his allies. But his campaign has launched a broad challenge to Clinton's international bona fides.

In a memo last week, senior Obama adviser Gregory B. Craig, President Bill Clinton's lawyer during his impeachment proceedings, disputed a series of Clinton foreign policy claims. "When your entire campaign is based upon a claim of experience, it is important that you have experience to support that claim," Craig wrote.

But it may be SCHIP that presents the biggest question marks for her. The issue combines Clinton's twin passions for health care and children's causes, and Clinton talks of it like a proud parent. Speaking to General Motors workers last month, Clinton said: "If you want universal health care, you have to take on the insurance companies -- that's exactly what I did as first lady. And when we weren't successful, I kept on fighting until we got health care for 6 million children."

Last fall, Kennedy said SCHIP "wouldn't be in existence" without Clinton's support inside the White House. But when her rhetoric on the campaign trail started to filter back to the Capitol, the veteran legislator became stingier with his praise.

"At the last hour, the administration supported it, and she was part of the administration, so I suppose she could say she supported it at the time," Kennedy said.

Chris Jennings, health policy coordinator in the Clinton White House, offers a different account. He recalled discussing an SCHIP-like program with the first lady even as her universal plan was unraveling. Jennings said Clinton pressed her husband to include children's health coverage in the 1997 State of the Union address and fiscal 1998 budget request.

But context is key, Jennings added. Barely two years had passed since the collapse of the universal health-care idea, and Clinton was still nursing deep political wounds. "She low-keyed her exposure, but that was on purpose," Jennings said. "Her feeling was 'I know my role, I'm going to be quiet, but I'm not going to go away.'"

As you may have heard the Bush Administration said each and every one of us would now get a nice rebate.

If we spend that money at Wal-Mart, all the money will go to China.

If we spend it on gasoline it will all go to the Arabs.

If we purchase a computer it will all go to India.

If we purchase fruit and vegetables it will all go to Mexico, Honduras, and Guatemala.

If we purchase a good car it will all go to Japan.

If we purchase useless crap it will all go to Taiwan and none of it will help the American economy.

We need to keep that money here in America, so the only way to keep that money here at home is to buy prostitutes and beer, since those are the only businesses still in the US.

You know dam good and well it has nothing to do with anyone "posting over another clla do that".

It has EVERYTHING to do with you having homosexual contact with a 17 year old boy.

How can you live with yourself knowing that you allowed a 17 year old to stick his dick in your ass?

You really are a demented fruit!

Steve? Is that your new name now, there, Criminal? Er... Uhm... I'm sorry, DouGAY?

As I said before, Karma's a Bitch. You put it out on people, you get it back in spades.

First you stalk someone and end your silly ass up in jail and then your beat your sister, all because you lost something you don't even fucking deserve....

Wow. Just Wow.

Maybe I should contact the Lucas County Court and fax down the threats
I recieved via your IP address on my yahoo account and let them know about the false reports you made to the FBI in Ohio. Maybe I should inform them of your user name on Rec.Radio.CB and all the crap you've done in here. The Threats, The stalking in here, with me and many others.

I wonder what they'd think of that?

Like I said. Karma's a bitch.

He is the only person in the world with that callsign. As somebody said, when he drags his callsign through the dirt, he shows disrespect for himself.

If he is a spammer, the best response is not to egg him on. Ignore him, like a nuisance phone caller.

I have to put it towards my propane heating bill for next year. I will get $1,500, and it will still not be enough. I'm well past that budget this year.

I kind of laugh at the Republicans and Americans who think this is a great thing. This is the equivalent of charging up a new credit card, when you are maxed out on the 10 you already have. This is borrowed money, that the Gov't doesn't have, but will have to pay interest on it later. Basically, it's the attitude of "It will be someone else's problem after we're all dead."

Hello Sharkie .... geeze, I've gotta get these old addies out of my cd backups. Just to remember who is who LOL.

Still here, just finally got XP installed in the compooter and then I couldn't get the newsgroups. I finally (after months) called tech support and the guy didn't think my ISP had 'em anymore. Well, I waited two more weeks (after months, who cares?) and called again. They told me they were having 'problems' with the newsgroups and it should be fixed in a day or two.

Three days later, I fired up Outlook Express (I normally use Outlook, but had set up newsgroups in O.E.) and, lo and behold, the newsgroups came in with no changes in settings!

So you're all stuck with me again :D

New Warnings From Pakistan!

This morning, from somewhere in Pakistan, Taliban Minister of Migration,
Mohammad Omar, warned the United States that if military action against Iraq continues, Taliban authorities will cut off America's supply of convenience store managers.
And if this action does not yield sufficient results, cab drivers will be next, followed by Dell Computer customer service reps, Motel 6 managers, liquor store cashiers, and gas station attendants.
Who knew it would come to this. It's getting ugly!

Sure K4yz & AB8MQ are listed on qrz - but there is no listing of Dan Jessward on qrz - also no findings of anyone trying to kill anyone else..... What else does your mind conjure up?

You need to come up with real proof!!!!

The radio will still put out the same power.

Any connections will have some resistance, which can increase with frequency. Such resistances will give some voltage drop and waste some energy as heat.
As long as it is in good condition, any losses may be negligible.

An important point to note is that, if a device adds to the length of the antenna, they will detune the antenna. So you may need to adjust the length to get the SWR correct again.

Peter.

It just amazes me that the FCC is so concerned about what goes on in the CB band. While guns are getting into the hands of crooks, and drugs are going out of control, who cares about the CBers. If they want amps SO, let then blast each other with over power and splitter, doesn't bother me. If they have a 10 meter rig in the CB band so what, its a radio it doesn't hurt me either. What I wonder is How does Dave Made, and allot of the other Amp builder, with their big web pages showing the Big amps get by.

FDA posts press releases and other notices of recalls and market withdrawals from the firms involved as a service to consumers, the media, and other interested parties. FDA does not endorse either the product or the company.

T.M. Kovacevich International, Inc. Recalls Cantaloupe Because of Possible Health Risk
Contact:
T.M. Kovacevich International, Inc.
(215) 336-3160

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE -- Philadelphia, PA -- March 25, 2008 --- T.M. Kovacevich International, Inc. of Philadelphia, PA is recalling cantaloupes which it purchased from Agropecuaria Montelibano, a Honduran grower and packer, because the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") has determined, based on current information, that cantaloupe fruit from this company has the potential to be contaminated with Salmonella, an organism which can cause serious and sometimes fatal infections in young children, frail or elderly people, and others with weakened immune systems. Healthy persons infected with Salmonella often experience fever, diarrhea (which may be bloody), nausea, vomiting and abdominal pain. In rare circumstances, infection with Salmonella can result in the organism getting into the bloodstream and producing more severe illnesses such as arterial infections (i.e., infected aneurysms), endocarditis and arthritis.

The recalled product was distributed to wholesalers and processors in Georgia, Florida, Massachusetts and New Jersey, and may have reached consumers through grocery stores, restaurants, or other similar channels. Whole cantaloupe fruits subject to this recall carry a "Mike's Melons" sticker or may be unlabeled because this sticker has fallen off. Whole cantaloupe fruits subject to this recall were sold in boxes marked with the following text: "Cantaloupe, Mike's Melons, Produce of Honduras, Grown, Packed and Shipped by Agropecuaria Montelibano, San Lorenzo, Valle, Honduras".

We are unaware to date of any illnesses that may be associated with any cantaloupes sold by our company.

This recall has been initiated based on the FDA's determination, based on current information, that cantaloupe fruit from the referenced grower/packer appears to be associated with a Salmonella Litchfield outbreak in the United States and Canada.

Consumers who have recently bought whole cantaloupes from this specific grower and packer should destroy these products immediately. Consumers with questions may contact George Manos of T.M. Kovacevich International, Inc. at (215) 336-3160.

You need to get a clue, guns and drugs are not under the FCC jurisdiction, illegal radios are.

All this money I've been pouring into the Social Security account will come to nothing. As much as I think Glenn Beck is a jerk he has a point with everything crashing down. How much is the 'war' in Iraq costing us?
And where is the money coming from? Could it be the U.S. government will put out more bonds for sale? And who in their right mind will buy them?

From the current conservative/capatilist administration whose plank is to reign in spending one looks wistfully back at the Clinton administration where the gov actually made money. Complete bollocks... Rant over.

Not sure how much retention is on the server. Obviously, I can set O.E. as to how many messages will come down from the newsgroup, but I haven't tried to see what the limits are. I've only downloaded 4963 messages and will likely be cutting out a lot of those.

We used to have binaries, but they got rid of them a couple years ago. Too many problems with porn (and pedophiles) as well is illegallly copied software. I don't blame 'em since when lawsuits occur, everyone goes for the deep pockets (i.e., don't sue the idiots involved in the porn or illegal software; go for the ISP LOL).

I'd ask, but when one guy at the help desk thought they no longer had newsgroups .... I don't think they would have any real idea of what they are doing anyways LOL.

Hello Jim,

Been awhile since I was down your way. The Worlds' Fair, to be precise when I was staying with a cousin on Eaton Neck Point (not sure of the spelling and it has been 44 years or so LOL). Tried - was it K2US - the ham shack in the Coke pavillion. A killer watt on 20 meters netted me a guy on Long Island. Sheesh :)) I did a lot better running 60-70 watts on cw from the home shack LOL. Heck, 65 watts on AM used to get me into Italy just fine. But Long Island running a KW? Give me a break. Why that guy responded I never did understand.

I killfiled all the rec.radio.amateur as they had gotten so bad as of a year or more ago. Idiots came flaming into rec.radio.cb and got what they asked for, I guess, although a number of them are still rattling on around here.

Stonyfield Farm Announces Nationwide Voluntary Recall of 6-Ounce Fat Free Blueberry Yogurts
Contact:
Alice Markowitz
(800) 776-2697

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE -- Londonderry, NH -- March 28, 2008 -- Organic yogurt maker Stonyfield Farm has announced a voluntary product recall of its non-fat blueberry yogurt products.

The recall comes in response to the possibility of glass fragments in the product. Although the company believes the problem is not widespread, it is taking this precautionary measure to ensure the safety of its consumers.

Affected products would be 6-ounce Fat Free Blueberry yogurts carrying one of following product codes printed along the cup bottom that start with the following dates:

Apr 14 08

Apr 15 08

April 25 08

Apr 26 08

There are no reports of injury. People who bite into or swallow a fragment could possibly be injured, prompting this precautionary recall.

Stonyfield Farm is also advising its distribution network to remove the 6-ounce fat free blueberry yogurt from the shelves immediately. The product is sold at natural food stores and major grocery retailers nationwide.

Consumers are instructed to return opened and unopened containers to their retailers. Those returning product will be reimbursed for the full value of their purchase.

"Our first priority has always been and always will be the welfare of our consumers," says Gary Hirshberg, Stonyfield Farm President and CE-Yo. "We are taking this voluntary step to ensure that we identify any product that does not meet our standards of quality and food safety."

Consumers with questions should contact Stonyfield Farm Consumer Relations at 1-800-PRO-COWS, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Jeez Jim Eatons Neck Point is money. Glad to hear you were rich back then ;)
Yeah the amateurs figured that if there is trash on their ng why not

Good to hear from you again Jim. Regards.

And the last statement is the most frightening.

They Walk Among Us

I was at the checkout of a K-Mart. The clerk rang up $46.64 charge. I Gave her a fifty dollar bill. She gave me back $46.64. I gave the money back to her and told her that she had made a mistake in MY favor. She became indignant and informed me she was Educated and knew what she was doing, and returned the money again. I gave her the Money back ... same scenario! I departed the store with the $46.64.

They Walk Among Us and Many Work Retail

I walked into a Starbucks with a buy-one-get-one-free coupon for a Grande Latte. I handed it to the girl and she looked over at a little chalkboard that said "buy one-get one free." "They're already buy-one-get-one-free," she said, "so I guess they're both free"
She Handed me my free Lattes and I walked out the door.

They Walk Among Us!

One day I was walking down the beach with some Friends when one of them shouted, "Look at that dead bird!" Someone looked Up at the sky and said, "Where?"

They Walk Among Us!

While looking at a house, my brother asked the real Estate agent which direction was north because, he explained, he didn't want the sun waking him up every morning. She asked, "Does the sun rise in the North?" When my brother explained that the sun rises in the East, and has for sometime, she shook her head and said, "Oh I don't keep up with all that stuff."

They Walk Among Us!!

I used to work in technical support for a 24/7 call center. One day I got a call from an individual who asked what hours the call center was open. I told him, "The number you dialed is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week." He responded, "Is that Eastern or Pacific time?" Wanting to end the call quickly, I said, "Uh, Pacific."

They Walk Among Us!

My sister has a lifesaving tool in her car designed to cut through a seat belt if she gets trapped. She keeps it in the trunk.

They Walk Among Us!

My friends and I were on a beer run and noticed that the cases were discounted 10%. Since it was a big party, we bought 2 cases. The cashier multiplied 2 times 10% and gave us a 20% discount.

They Walk Among Us!

I couldn't find my luggage at the airport baggage area, so I went to the lost luggage office and told the woman there that my bags never showed up. She smiled and told me not to worry because she was a trained professional and I was in good hands. "Now," she asked me, has your plane arrived yet?"

They Walk Among Us!

While working at a pizza parlor I observed a man Ordering a small pizza to go. He appeared to be alone and the cook asked him if he would like it cut into 4 pieces or 6. He thought about it for some time before responding. "Just cut it into 4 pieces; I don't think I'm hungry enough to eat 6 pieces."

Yep, They Walk Among Us!

They Walk Among Us, and they Reproduce, and Worst of all... they Vote!

You're right about money. I stayed with my 3rd cousin. Good grief, his wife only made one meal per week for him. That was Sunday. Every other day, they ate out. I nearly croaked when we went for dinner that first night. Spaghetti, the cheapest thing on the menu, was $8.00. Remember, this was 1964 (I think LOL). He was the general manager of Pickering (the phonograph cartridge maker) and later became the president of Pickering. His neighbor was ... gad, I'm trying to remember .... some big banker .... with his own helicopter. Yep, big money there LOL.

I almost came close. My grandfather and his parents immigrated from Scotland. My grandfather was born in 1891 and (I'm wondering how many jobs they were working and how much money my great-grandfather had), in the 1920 census they were both listed as "stonecutters". My dad showed up in the 1920 census as 6 months old (he is still alive and doing well). Well, my great-grandfather and my grandfather ended up owning Gouverneur Marble Works (I was born in Gouverneur). Before the great depression, my grandfather (still quite young) was worth 3/4 million. That was money in those days and my other grandparents were quite well off. He worked in a lace mill and owned some restaurants as well. I've seen some "society" pages from the Gouverneur Tribune and those families were "in". The depression wiped my dad's grandfather and father out and then Gouverneur Marble ran out of marble :( Such is life. At least I've never had to deal with being rich and loosing it all.

Great to hear from some of the folks in this ng. One can't tell what the virtue (or lack thereof) of folks is by the having or not having a ticket. Heck, I've had a good chat with a guy who, upon hearing of my interest in black holes, asked if I had college level calculus. When I answered in the affirmative, he suggested I take his course at the U. of R. He taught theoretical physics! I respectfully declined as I've been out of school over 40 years now and hardly can tell an integral from an integer LOL.

Just my thoughts:
I had the same mess here.
60 feet and a new coax is the best help you can get right now.
And using guide wires to keep it in the air acts as a better ground plane too. He He Metal radials copper is best on the ground in 4 directions as well as on the antenna. The radials for the antenna is sold as a kit at Palco Electronics for $50.00.
The antenna you have is set from the factory for 11 meters (CB).
It is tuneable also to adjust your swr and 1.2 to 1 is all out best - the better the swr the better signal strength you will have and evey little bit counts and you are legal.
Another thing to consider as you can handle the cost is the mic you have get the astatic power mic new or used. Much better modulation. Make sure your radio is tuned by all means.
